An Outline of Russian Literature Maurice Baring, 1915 An Outline of Russian Literature Maurice Baring, 2024-01-05 Excerpt The chief difficulty which Englishmen have experienced in writing about Russia has up till quite lately been the prevailing ignorance of the English public with regard to all that concerns Russian affairs A singularly intelligent Russian who is connected with the Art Theatre at Moscow said to me that he feared the new interest taken by English intellectuals with regard to Russian literature and Russian art He was delighted of course that they should be interested in Russian affairs but he feared their interest was in danger of being crystallized in a false shape and directed into erroneous channels This ignorance will always remain until English people go to Russia and learn to know the Russian people at first hand It is not enough to be acquainted with a certain number of Russian writers I say a certain number advisedly because although it is true that such writers as Tolstoy and Turgenev have long been naturalized in England it is equally true that some of the greatest and most typical of Russian authors have not yet been translated There is in England no complete translation of Pushkin This is much the same as though there were in Russia no complete translation of Shakespeare or Milton I do not mean by this that Pushkin is as great a poet as Shakespeare or Milton but I do mean that he is the most national and the most important of all Russian writers There is no translation of Saltykov the greatest of Russian satirists there is no complete translation of Leskov one of her greatest
