Desistance, Resistance, and Normalcy Tea Fredriksson,Robin Gålnander,2025-03-26 This book provides a nuanced critical analysis of desistance from crime particularly through the lens of women's experiences. It develops desistance theory by interrogating the concept of normalcy, highlighting how normative societal expectations cause harms on desistance journeys. Through this lens, the book uncovers tensions between desistance as a journey towards societal reintegration and the resistance desisters experience when encountering state institutions and social norms. Being no longer part of the old life and not yet part of the new, desisters face both familiar and unfamiliar harms. A key conceptual contribution is the book's critique of normalcy as both an aspirational and oppressive goal. The work illustrates how the pursuit of mainstream inclusion can expose desisters to both new and continuous harms. These include surveillance and stigma, social and literal death, gendered violence, and economic precarity. By engaging with feminist and temporal criminological theories, the book sheds light on how desisters' experiences reveal the dark side of normalcy, calling into question whether its pursuit is wholly desirable. With its focus on the intersections of gender stigma and social control, this work advances academic debates on desistance, proposing a rethinking of how criminal justice systems and support frameworks engage with those transitioning out of criminalized lifestyles. It will appeal to students and scholars of criminology, desistance, gender studies, recovery from addiction, and to practitioners and policy makers in these fields. Historical Criminology David Churchill, Henry

Yeomans, Iain Channing, 2021-11-29. This book sets an agenda for the development of historical approaches to criminology. It defines historical criminology, explores its characteristic strengths and limitations, and considers its potential to enhance, revise, and fundamentally challenge dominant modes of thinking about crime and social responses to crime. It considers the following questions: What is historical criminology? What does thinking historically about crime and justice entail? How is historical criminology currently practised? What are the advantages and disadvantages of different approaches to historical criminology? How can historical criminology reshape understandings of crime and social responses to crime? How does thinking historically bear upon major theoretical, conceptual, and methodological questions in criminological research? What does thinking historically have to offer criminological scholarship more broadly, and the uses of criminology in the public realm? In this book, Churchill, Yeomans, and Channing situate historical thinking at the heart of historical criminology, reveal the value of historical research to criminology, and argue that criminologists across the field have much to gain from engaging in historical thinking in a more regular and sustained way. This book is essential reading for all criminologists as well as students taking courses on theories, concepts, and methods in criminology. In the Long Run Jonathan

White, 2024-02-01. Exhilarating Financial Times. Highly perceptive, engaging, and somewhat startling Literary Review. A profound meditation on how and why democracy must keep its faith in the future, and the future must keep its faith in democracy. David Runciman. Democracy is future-oriented, and self-correcting: today's problems can be solved, we are told, in tomorrow's elections. But the biggest issues facing the modern world—from climate collapse and pandemics to recession and world war—each apparently bring us to the edge of the irreversible. What happens to democracy when the future seems no

Visions of the Future in Roman Frontier Kingdoms 100 BCE-100 CE Richard Teverson, 2024-09-03 This is the first book length exploration of the ways art from the edges of the Roman Empire represented the future examining visual representations of time and the role of artwork in Roman imperial systems This book focuses on four kingdoms from across the empire Cottius's Alpine kingdom in the north King Juba II's Mauretania in the south west Herodian Judea in the east and Kommagene to the north east Art from the imperial frontier is rarely considered through the lens of the aesthetics of time and Roman provincial art and the monuments of allied rulers are typically interpreted as evidence of the interaction between Roman and local identities In this interdisciplinary study which explores statues wall paintings coins monuments and inscriptions readers learn that these artworks served as something more they were created to represent the futures that allied rulers and their people foresaw The pressure of Roman imperialism drove patrons and artists on the empire's borders to imbue their creations with increasingly sophisticated ideas about the future as they wrestled with consequential decisions made under periods of intense political pressure

Comprehensively illustrated and providing an important new approach to Roman material culture at the edge of empire Visions of the Future in Roman Frontier Kingdoms 100 BCE-100 CE is suitable for students and scholars working on Rome and its frontiers as well as Roman material culture more broadly and those studying the aesthetics of time in art and art history

Negative Aesthetics and Political Collapse in Eastern European and Balkan Cinema Zoran Samardzija, 2025-07-18 Negative Aesthetics and Political Collapse in Eastern European and Balkan Cinema examines the theme of political collapse in select contemporary Eastern European and Balkan art cinema and documentaries from the late eighties to the present Engaging with debates in Marxism and contemporary film theory about political aesthetics the book centers around the question of whether we can imagine possible futures through negative aesthetics which are skeptical of cinema's ability to reproduce reality in a comprehensive and unmediated manner In particular it analyzes examples of ambiguous art cinema and related hybrid documentary modes in order to invite spectators to rethink how we understand and represent the unique experiences of living through the collapse of authoritarian communism and the transition to neoliberal capitalism Negative Aesthetics and Political Collapse ultimately argues that the skepticism about political change and representing history found in these films forms an original mode of utopian thinking In other words their negativity about their own artistic autonomy is the very thing that allows them to hint at possible futures that are unrepresentable because they exist outside of the frameworks of contemporary geopolitics and our dominant understandings of cinematic aesthetics Redefining how we understand the intersections between geopolitics art cinema aesthetics and film theory the book presents a unique synthesis of film and political theory that attempts a new understanding of cinematic aesthetics As such it will interest scholars of film theory global art cinema aesthetics regional studies of Eastern Europe and the Balkans and political science
