The escalating marriage age and declin ing marriage rate mean we re spending a greater portion of our lives unattached searching for love well into our thirties and forties It s no wonder that a third of America s 90 million singles are turning to dating Web sites Once considered the realm of the lonely and desperate sites like eHarmony Match OkCupid and Plenty of Fish have been embraced by pretty much every demographic Thanks to the increasingly efficient algorithms that power these sites dating has been transformed from a daunting transaction based on scarcity to one in which the possibilities are almost endless Now anyone young old straight gay and even married can search for exactly what they want connect with more people and get more information about those people than ever before As journalist Dan Slater shows online dating is changing society in more profound ways than we imagine He explores how these new technologies by altering our perception of what s possible are reconditioning our feelings about commitment and challenging the traditional paradigm of adult life Like the sexual revolution of the 1960s and 70s the digital revolution is forcing us to ask new questions about what constitutes normal Why should we settle for someone who falls short of our expectations if there are thousands of other options just a click away Can commitment thrive in a world of unlimited choice Can chemistry really be quantified by math geeks As one of Slater's subjects wonders. What is the etiquette here Blending history psychology and interviews with site creators and users. Slater takes readers behind the scenes of a fascinating business.
