

The Open Universe: An Argument for Indeterminism*

MENDEL SACHS, Physics and Astronomy, State University of New York at Buffalo

Sir Karl R. Popper has published a very interesting and provocative set of three books, Postscript to the Logic of Scientific Discovery, intended as a sequel to his well-known Logic of Scientific Discovery.¹ This is the first of two of the books that I will review, the other one to follow: Quantum Theory and the Schism in Physics, is related to the subject of this book in their discussion of the philosophy of the quantum theory and its possible extension to a general philosophy of physics. The third book of the set, Realism and the Aim of Science, deals with Popper's view of the philosophy of science, per se, particularly his meaning of the term 'realism' in science, which I will discuss in this review.

The Open Universe puts forward Popper's main arguments in support of his notion of indeterminism, as an underlying concept of the physical world. At the outset, he makes clear a distinction between three kinds of indeterminism: religious, scientific, and metaphysical. But his thesis in this book deals mainly with what he calls 'scientific determinism', which he claims to refute once and for all. Popper asserts that one cannot conclusively refute religious or metaphysical determinism because they are based on faith rather than having a rational, logical basis. But he does present arguments that try to make these forms of determinism less believable than his (opposite) belief in indeterminism.

'Religious determinism', to Popper, refers to the existence of a higher spirit, God, outside of the universe, who is aware of the entire predetermined future of the universe, as it evolves in time according to His divine law. In Popper's view, this form of determinism (as the other forms) rejects the view of human free will, and is therefore unacceptable as a truth, in view of his 'common sense' awareness of free will.

'Scientific determinism' compares with religious determinism by replacing 'God' with 'nature', and replacing 'divine law' with 'natural law'. But it is crucial in Popper's argument that this form of determinism also includes the human being's predictive capacity—his ability to predict the future from the natural laws with absolute certainty. 'Metaphysical determinism' then removes the human being's predictive ability from the scene, asserting that all events in the world are predetermined, though not all of them are necessarily known or predictable by the human species. Thus, the adjectives, 'metaphysical' (or 'scientific') in the notion of determinism refer to predetermined laws of the universe in all of its manifestations, though in the absence (or in the presence) of human involvement regarding his awareness of the universe and its future. That is, the metaphysical view is purely ontological while the scientific view of
