

May it please the court, counsel, members of the jury, good morning. We are here today only because my client Taylor had to tackle Mrs Sia to the ground in order to protect the property within her store - Mag's Mad Music Store from unlawful possession . A store that my client is responsible for within her role as store manager, This is a case of self-defense, and nothing more.

In a criminal case, the prosecution, having the burden of proof, presents evidence first. The prosecution will try and prove beyond a reasonable doubt that my client Ms Taylor intended to cause grievous bodily harm to the complainant Ms Sia.

Before I talk to you about what we believe the evidence will show, I want to make one fact perfectly clear to each and every one of you. We do not contest the fact that the defendant Ms Taylor did in fact tackle Ms Sia on the relevant date outside Mag's Mad Music Store. We agree that this happened. That fact, however, is not the issue in this case.

The only issue in this case is whether Ms Taylor was defending and protecting the property from within her store from unlawful taking, destruction and damage. In other words, ladies and gentlemen, was the defendant justified in defending the property within her store under the facts and circumstances that unfolded during the events in question. Please remember that we, as the defense, don't have to prove anything. It's the prosecution that has to prove, beyond a reasonable doubt, that Ms Taylor was not justified in defending the property she was responsible for. The evidence will show that Ms Taylor was in fact justified in doing what she did and thus is not guilty of any crime. In short, this is simply a case of self-defense.

The evidence will show that Ms Taylor's response at the time of the matter in question undertook reasonably the actions necessary in order to protect a recurring event from happening. CCTV footage and police records will show that Ms Sia has a history of robbing stores of its property and that on multiple previous occasions Ms Sia has stolen albums from the store. In desperation, knowing of Ms Sia's history of stealing from her store, my client Ms Taylor reasonably tackled Ms Taylor to the ground in order to prevent Ms Taylor from leaving the property that belongs to the store.

As stated previously to you, the prosecution will try and prove beyond a reasonable doubt that my client Ms Taylor intended to cause grievous bodily harm to the complainant Ms Sia. Grievous bodily harm. Members of the public I want to listen to the evidence that will provided to you and come to your own conclusion whether Ms Taylors actions when defending her property caused a "really serious injury" that left a "permanent and serious disfigurement" or whether is was a reasonable and necessary course of action

Closing the Justice Gap for Adult and Child Sexual Assault Anne Cossins, 2020-10-21 This book examines the justice gap and trial process for sexual assault against both adults and children in two jurisdictions England and Wales and New South Wales Australia Drawing on decades of research it investigates the reality of the policing and prosecution of sexual assault offences often seen as one of the hardest crimes to prosecute across two similar jurisdictions Despite the introduction of the many reform options detailed in the book satisfactory outcomes for victims and the public are still difficult to obtain Cossins takes a new approach by examining the nature and effects of adversarialism on vulnerable witnesses jury decision making and the structures of power within the trial process to show how and at what points that process is weighted against complainants of sexual assault in order to make evidence based suggestions for reform She argues that this justice gap is a result of a moralistic adversarial culture which fosters myths and misconceptions about rape and child sexual assault thus requiring the prosecution to prove a complainant's moral worthiness She argues this culture can only be eliminated by a radical replacement of the adversarial system with a trauma informed system By reviewing the relevant psychological literature this book documents the triggers for re-traumatisation within an adversarial trial and discusses the reform measures that would be necessary to transform the sexual assault trial from one where the complainant's moral worthiness is on trial to a fully functioning trauma informed system It speaks to students and academics across subjects including law criminology gender studies and psychology and practitioners in law and victim services as well as policy makers The opening speech and reply of James Scarlett ... upon the trial of Henry Hunt and others.
