Iron Age Communities in Britain Barry Cunliffe, 2004-08-02 This fully revised fourth edition maintains the qualities of the earlier editions whilst taking into account the significant developments that have moulded the discipline in recent years

Iron Age Communities in Britain Barry W. Cunliffe, 1991 The Iron Age in Northern Britain Dennis W.

Harding, 2004-08-26 The Iron Age in Northern Britain examines the impact of the Roman expansion northwards and the native response to the Roman occupation on both sides of the frontiers It traces the emergence of historically recorded communities in the post Roman period and looks at the clash of cultures between Celts and Romans Picts and Scots Northern Britain has too often been seen as peripheral to a core located in south eastern England Unlike the Iron Age in southern Britain the story of which can be conveniently terminated with the Roman conquest the Iron Age in northern Britain has no such horizon to mark its end The Roman presence in southern and eastern Scotland was militarily intermittent and left untouched large tracts of Atlantic Scotland for which there is a rich legacy of Iron Age settlement continuing from the mid first millennium BC to the period of Norse settlement in the late first millennium AD Here D W Harding shows that northern Britain was not peripheral in the Iron Age it simply belonged to an Atlantic European mainstream different from southern England and its immediate continental neighbours Scotland: Archaeology and Early History J N Graham

Robert Laing, 2006-06-29 This book first published in 2006 surveys the archaeology of the Celtic speaking areas of Britain and Ireland AD 400 to 1200 The Cleaven Dyke and Littleour Gordon Barclay, Gordon S. Maxwell, 1998 Cleaven Dyke was for some centuries identified as a Roman construction However the authors surveys and excavations strongly suggest that it was built as part of the Neolithic cursus monument tradition The volume presents the comprehensive results of their study showing in detail the segmented nature of the Dyke s construction its alignment and the palaeoenvironmental evidence for the surrounding landscape In addition the nearby recitilinear timber enclosure of Littleour is also described An

Archaeology of Land Ownership Maria Relaki, Despina Catapoti, 2013-10-23 Within archaeological studies land tenure has been mainly studied from the viewpoint of ownership A host of studies has argued about land ownership on the basis of the simple co existence of artefacts on the landscape other studies have tended to extrapolate land ownership from more indirect means Particularly noteworthy is the tendency to portray land ownership as the driving force behind the emergence of social complexity a primordial ingredient in the processes that led to the political and economic expansion of prehistoric societies The association between people and land in all of these interpretive schemata is however less easy to detect analytically Although various rubrics have been employed to identify such a connection most notable among them the concepts of cultures regions or even households they take the links between land and people as a given and not as something that needs to be conceptually defined and empirically substantiated An Archaeology of Land Ownership demonstrates that the relationship between people and land in the past is first and foremost an analytical issue and one that calls for clarification not only at the level of definition but also methodological applicability Bringing together an international roster of specialists the essays in this volume call attention to the processes by which links to land are established the various forms that such links take and how they can change through time as well as their importance in helping to forge or dilute an understanding of community at various circumstances
