States of Nature Stuart George McCook,2010-07-05 The process of nation building in Latin America transformed the relations between the state the economy and nature Between 1760 and 1940 the economies of most countries in the Spanish Caribbean came to depend heavily on the export of plant products such as coffee tobacco and sugar After the mid nineteenth century this model of export led economic growth also became a central tenet of liberal projects of nation building As international competition grew and commodity prices fell over this period Latin American growers strove to remain competitive by increasing agricultural production By the turn of the twentieth century their pursuit of export led growth had generated severe environmental problems including soil exhaustion erosion and epidemic outbreaks of crop diseases and pests This book traces the history of the intersections between nature economy and nation in the Spanish Caribbean through a history of the agricultural and botanical sciences Growers and governments in Venezuela Puerto Rico Cuba Colombia and Costa Rica turned to scientists to help them establish practical and ideological control over nature They hoped to use science to alleviate the pressing environmental and economic stresses without having to give up their commitment to export led growth Starting from an overview of the relationship among science nature and development throughout the export boom of 1760 to 1930 Stuart McCook examines such topics as the relationship between scientific plant surveys and nation building the development of a creole science to address the problems of tropical agriculture the ecological rationalization of the sugar industry and the growth of technocratic ideologies of science and progress He concludes with a look at how the Great Depression of the 1930s changed the paradigms of economic and political development and the role of science and nature in these paradigms

Studies on Slavery in Brazilian and African History and Literature Roberto Hofmeister-Pich, Stephan Conermann, 2025-10-14 Historically Latin American political entities were structured by different forms of slave labor that until the 19th century depended on transatlantic slave trade from Africa to the Americas In this volume scholars from Brazil Germany and Africa characterize different forms of serfdom in colonial times picture slavery based societies and explore aspects of dependency relations that emerged in the aftermath of abolition in Brazil and Africa

Tropical Alpine Environments Philip W. Rundel, Alan P. Smith, F. C. Meinzer, 1994-09 Plants growing in tropical alpine environments at altitudes above the closed canopy forest and below the limit of plant life have evolved distinct forms to cope with a hostile environment characterized by cold drought and fire Unlike temperate alpine environments where there are distinct seasons of favourable and unfavourable conditions for growth tropical alpine habitats present summer conditions every day and winter conditions every night Using examples from all over the tropics this fascinating account reviews for the first time the unique form and functional relationships of tropical alpine plants examining both their physiological ecology and population biology It will appeal to anyone interested in tropical vegetation and plant physiological adaptations to hostile environment as well as to researchers in biogeography and ecology
