Sexually dimorphic physiology that contributes to sex differences in cardiovascular therapeutic responses may include immune responses, cardiovascular health, the blood-brain barrier, coronary atherosclerosis, pathology, complications of COVID-19 infections, and the interplay between psychological factors and sedentarism. Furthermore, current knowledge indicates the role of hormonal regulation has a significant impact in sex-specific differences across the clinical cardiology field. The National Institute of Health (NIH) previously adopted a policy to encourage researchers to consider sex as a biological variable (SABV) as well as Sex and Gender Equity in Research (SAGER). In order to promote sexual dimorphic cardiovascular therapeutic development, we have organized this special topic, Sex Differences and Cardiovascular Therapeutics, to provide a scientific forum for cardiovascular scientists and clinicians to present their newest findings in characterizing sex differences in cardiovascular therapeutics. Potential areas of research within this collection may include but are not limited to:

1. Different outcomes and responses to drug treatment in cardiovascular disease between male and female
2. Mechanisms of sexual dimorphic response and outcomes related to drug treatment of cardiovascular disease
3. Sex hormones and their receptors in cardiovascular function in animal studies and clinical therapeutic applications
4. Gender-affirming hormone therapy and cardiovascular function
5. Regulatory guidance for cardiovascular therapeutics in relation to sex-specific differences

Sex Differences in the Brain Jill B. Becker, Karen J. Berkley, Nori Geary, Elizabeth Hampson, James P. Herman, Elizabeth Young, 2007-12-04 Within the basic and clinical biomedical research community, there is increasing recognition that differences between males and females across the lifespan affect an individual's health, his/her development of disease, signs and symptoms of pathophysiology, and response to therapy. This book is intended as a resource for scientists, clinicians, and students of the nervous system and behavior, a trove of practical information about how to study sex differences in the brain, as well as a discussion of what is already known on the topic.

Booklist: A writer who blends professional expertise in zoology with charm, wit, and a cockeyed sense of humor. What better guide through nature's red light district could one ask for? Natural History Magazine: 1,000 million years ago, a sexual revolution occurred on Earth. Sex happened for the first time. From this moment, the world became ever more colorful and bizarre, ringing with elaborate songs and dances, epic battles and rallying cries as the desires of males and females collided. Generation after generation, all of your ancestors took part and succeeded, an unbroken chain of sex right back to the dawn of complex life on Earth. Well done you! Well done everything! The world in which we live rings, bleeds, and howls with sex. It's everywhere. Right now, warring hordes are locking horns, preening feathers, rampaging lustfully across the savanna, questioning the fidelity of the ones they love. Birds are singing, flowers bloom. A million females choose, a billion penises ejaculate, or snap off a trillion sperm. Battle, block, and tackle. Written in a brilliantly engaging style by biologist Jules Howard, this fascinating and highly readable work covers the how and why of sex on Earth in all its diversity. From sperm wars to cuckoldry, hermaphrodites, and
