The Evolution of Rhythm Cognition: Timing in Music and Speech Andrea Ravignani, Henkjan Honing, Sonja A. Kotz, 2018-07-24 Human speech and music share a number of similarities and differences One of the closest similarities is their temporal nature as both i develop over time ii form sequences of temporal intervals possibly differing in duration and acoustical marking by different spectral properties which are perceived as a rhythm and iii generate metrical expectations Human brains are particularly efficient in perceiving producing and processing fine rhythmic information in music and speech However a number of critical questions remain to be answered Where does this human sensitivity for rhythm arise How did rhythm cognition develop in human evolution How did environmental rhythms affect the evolution of brain rhythms Which rhythm specific neural circuits are shared between speech and music or even with other domains Evolutionary processes long time scales often prevent direct observation understanding the psychology of rhythm and its evolution requires a close fitting integration of different perspectives First empirical observations of music and speech in the field are contrasted and generate testable hypotheses Experiments exploring linguistic and musical rhythm are performed across sensory modalities ages and animal species to address questions about domain specificity development and an evolutionary path of rhythm Finally experimental insights are integrated via synthetic modeling generating testable predictions about brain oscillations underlying rhythm cognition and its evolution Our understanding of the cognitive neurobiological and evolutionary bases of rhythm is rapidly increasing However researchers in different fields often work on parallel potentially converging strands with little mutual awareness This research topic builds a bridge across several disciplines focusing on the cognitive neuroscience of rhythm as an evolutionary process It includes contributions encompassing although not limited to 1 developmental and comparative studies of rhythm e g critical acquisition periods innateness 2 evidence of rhythmic behavior in other species both spontaneous and in controlled experiments 3 comparisons of rhythm processing in music and speech e.g. behavioral experiments systems neuroscience perspectives on music speech networks 4 evidence on rhythm processing across modalities and domains 5 studies on rhythm in interaction and context social affective etc 6 mathematical and computational e.g. connectionist symbolic models of rhythmicity as an evolved behavior

Art, Space and the City Malcolm Miles, 2005-08-16 Public art the making management and mediation of art outside its conventional location in museums and galleries and the livable city a concept involving user centred strategies for urban planning and design are both socially produced but have emerged from different fields and tend to be discussed in isolation This book applies a range of critical perspectives which have emerged from different disciplines art criticism urban design urban sociology geography and critical theory to examine the practice of art for urban public spaces seeing public art from positions outside those of the art world to ask how it might contribute to possible urban futures Exploring the diversity of urban politics the functions of public space and its relation to the structures of power the roles of professionals and users in the construction of the city the gendering of space and the ways in which space and citizen are represented the book explains how these issues are as relevant to architecture urban design and urban planning as they are to public art Drawing on a wealth of images from across the UK and Europe and the USA in particular the author questions the effectiveness of public art in achieving more convivial urban environments whilst retaining the idea that imagining possible futures is as much part of a democratic society as using public space Sweden Jason
