Making Care Work Employed Mothers In The New Childcare Market:

Making Care Work Lynet Uttal, 2002 As ever more women work outside the home ever more families employ childcare workers In the absence of government regulations or social models that clearly define the childcare provider's role mothers worry about the quality of care their children are getting By connecting the personal level of mothers' daily experiences to the larger political economic and ideological context of childcare Lynet Uttal describes and explains how mothers rely on their relationship with the providers to monitor and influence the quality of care their children receive Whereas other studies have emphasized how mothers undervalue and exploit providers this book paints a more nuanced picture arguing that the ties between adults who share in the care of children creates neither heroes nor victims This ethnography reveals that mothers are often reluctant to discuss their concerns with their childcare providers Uttal shows how mothers walk a fine line between wanting to believe in the quality of care they have chosen and the fact that they might have made a mistake Catalyzed by their worries about the quality of care mothers develop complex relationships with the women and most are women who look after their children

The Immeasurable Mind William R. Uttal, 2010-05 Is psychology a science Unlike Darwinian theory in biology or relativity and quantum theory in physics psychology lacks the basic quantitative or conceptual foundation for a consensus view about how the mind works Is psychology on the verge of developing such a foundation Probably not answers psychologist William R. Uttal in this iconoclastic and critical examination of psychology's underlying principles assumptions and concepts In five in depth chapters and one appendix he explores the following key issues What do we mean by science and can psychology be legitimately described as a science What are the general principles that should be applied to any science What is the role of mathematics in psychology Given the current fragmented state of the discipline is it possible to identify the general principles of a scientific psychology Is experimental psychology just applied epistemology and not really scientific Uttal comes to the conclusion that psychology is a science only to the extent that it is behaviorist in orientation By comparing his discipline to other sciences he identifies its limits establishes a set of principles that help to define psychology as a science and suggests plausible future developments
