Patrons, Clients, and Empire Colin Newbury, 2003-01-02 Patrons Clients and Empire challenges the stereotypes of despotic imperial power in Asian African and Pacific colonies by analysing the relationship between rulers and rulers on both sides of the imperial equation It seeks an answer to the question how were European officials able to govern so many societies for so long Rejecting the usual explanations of collaboration and indirect rule this study looks to pre imperial structures in the indigenous hierarchies which supplied patrimonial models of chieftaincy for territorial government For nawabs chiefs emirs sultans and their officials and followers there were dynastic and economic advantages in accepting the terms of European over rule as well as the threat of deposition For European officials few in numbers and with limited military and financial resources there were ready made systems of local government that could be co opted reformed or left relatively untouched Both sides played politics as patrons and clients within a dual system of administration based on a mixture of force and self interest Surveying a wide variety of cases and employing a patron client model this study embraces pre colonial colonial and post colonial politics in new states It covers the chronology of early European dependency on local rulers the reasons for reversal of status among chiefs and administrators the longer period of political bargaining over access to local resources in terms of land labour and taxes and the ultimate fate of indigenous rulers in the period of party politics leading to independence
