Patrons, Painters, and Saints Julian Gardner, 1993 These papers investigate the revival of painting and mosaic in Rome in the second half of the 13th century and the contribution of Rome to the birth of modern painting Their concern is with the interrelationships between pictures and their social political and religious context In this way the early work of Giotto and the development of the Italian altarpiece are reconsidered with particular attention being paid to questions of structure setting and patronage The work of Simone Martini for the Angevin Court at Naples and the promotion of the cult of new saints by visual means is examined within the context of the European politics of canonisation Finally Professor Gardner considers the artistic role of the Mendicant orders in particular the Franciscans and the Dominicans and their self promotion by visual images

Indian Painters & White Patrons J. J. Brody, 1971 In this major work of criticism in art and social history Dr Brody demonstrates that modern Indian painting has been until 1962 not a truly native expression derived from aboriginal forms but merely a passive response to White paternalism It has been according to Dr Brody an art produced by Indians for Whites an invention rather than a revival with little or no relationship to earlier pictorial modes and functions among the Indians

Making Modern Japanese-Style Painting Chelsea Foxwell, 2015-07-20 The Western discovery of Japanese paintings at nineteenth century world s fairs and export shops catapulted Japanese art to new levels of international popularity With that popularity however came criticism as Western writers began to lament a perceived end to pure Japanese art and a rise in westernized cultural hybrids The Japanese response nihonga a traditional style of painting that reframed existing techniques to distinguish them from Western artistic conventions Making Modern Japanese Style Painting explores the visual characteristics and social functions of nihonga and traces its relationship to the past its viewers and emerging notions of the modern Japanese state Chelsea Foxwell sheds light on interlinked trends in Japanese nationalist discourse government art policy American and European commentary on Japanese art and the demands of export The seminal artist Kano Hogai 1828-88 is one telling example originally a painter for the shogun his art eventually evolved into novel eerie images meant to satisfy both Japanese and Western audiences Rather than simply absorbing Western approaches nihonga as practiced by Hogai and others broke with pre Meiji painting even as it worked to neutralize the rupture By arguing that fundamental changes to audience expectations led to the emergence of nihonga a traditional interpretation of Japanese art for a contemporary international market Making Modern Japanese Style Painting offers a fresh look at an important aspect of Japan s development into a modern nation

Lee, 1999-04-15 During the 1930s San Francisco's most ambitious public murals were painted by artists on the left In this study Anthony Lee shows how these painters led by Diego Rivera sought to transform murals into a vehicle for their rejection of the economic and political status quo and their support of labor and radical ideologies including Communism In addressing these subjects the mural painters developed a new imagery based on the activities of the city's laboring population its efforts to organize its protests its strikes Artists and Patrons in Post-war Britain Courtauld Institute of Art, 2017-11-01 This title was first published in 2001 An examination of art and patronage in Britain during the post war years It consists of five case studies initially written as MA theses that closely investigate aspects of the mechanisms of patronage outside the state institutions while indicating structural links within it The writers have sought to elucidate the relationship between patronage the production of art and its dissemination Without seeking to provide an inclusive account of patronage or art production in the early post war years their disparate and highly selective papers set up models for the structure of patronage under specific historical conditions They assume an understanding that works of art are embedded in their social contexts are products of the conditions under which they were produced and that these contexts and conditions are complex fluid and imbricated in one another
