

An aerial photograph of a coastal landscape. In the foreground, there are large, undulating sand dunes in shades of light beige and cream. To the right, a strip of green vegetation borders a sandy area. In the lower right, a body of water with a dark, possibly rocky or forested shoreline is visible. The overall scene is a mix of natural, rugged terrain and some developed or vegetated areas.

editor of Images and Identities The Puerto Rican in Two World Contexts Being Portuguese in Spanish Jonathan William Wade, 2020-04-15 Among the many consequences of Spain's annexation of Portugal from 1580 to 1640 was an increase in the number of Portuguese authors writing in Spanish. One can trace this practice as far back as the medieval period although it was through Gil Vicente, Jorge de Montemayor and others that Spanish language texts entered the mainstream of literary expression in Portugal. Proficiency in both languages gave Portuguese authors increased mobility throughout the empire. For those with literary aspirations, Spanish offered more opportunities to publish and greater readership which may be why it is nearly impossible to find a Portuguese author who did not participate in this trend during the dual monarchy. Over the centuries these authors and their works have been erroneously defined in terms of economic opportunism, questions of language loyalty and other reductive categories. Within this large group, however, is a subcategory of authors who used their writings in Spanish to imagine, explore and celebrate their Portuguese heritage. Manuel de Faria e Sousa, ngela de Azevedo, Jacinto Cordeiro, Antnio de Sousa de Macedo and Violante do C u among many others offer a uniform yet complex answer to what it means to be from Portugal, constructing and claiming their Portuguese identity from within a Castilianized existence. Whereas all texts produced in Iberia during the early modern period reflect the distinct social, political and cultural realities sweeping across the peninsula, to some degree Portuguese literature written in Spanish offers a unique vantage point from which to see these converging landscapes. Being Portuguese in Spanish explores the cultural cross-pollination that defined the era and reappraises a body of works that uniquely addresses the intersection of language, literature, politics and identity.

Cataloging Policy and Support Office, 2009 A Comparative History of Literatures in the Iberian Peninsula Fernando Cabo Aseguinolaza, Anxo Abuín González, César Domínguez, 2010 A Comparative History of Literatures in the Iberian Peninsula is the second comparative history of a new subseries with a regional focus published by the Coordinating Committee of the International Comparative Literature Association. As its predecessor for East Central Europe, this two-volume history distances itself from traditional histories built around periods and movements and explores from a comparative viewpoint a space considered to be a powerful symbol of inter-literary relations. Both the geographical pertinence and its symbolic condition are obviously discussed when not even contested. Written by an international team of researchers who are specialists in the field, this history is the first attempt at applying a comparative approach to the plurilingual and multicultural literatures in the Iberian Peninsula. The aim of comprehensiveness is abandoned in favor of a diverse and extensive array of key issues for a comparative agenda. A Comparative History of Literatures in the Iberian Peninsula undermines the primacy claimed for national and linguistic boundaries and provides a geo-cultural account of literary inter-systems which cannot otherwise be explained The Portuguese Nun Anna Klobucka, 2000 This study describes and analyzes cultural and literary mythology surrounding the figure of the seventeenth century nun Mariana Alcoforado as the presumed author of the celebrated collection of love letters that originally appeared in 1669 in French under the title of Lettres portugaises known in their many English editions as Portuguese Letters or Letters of a Portuguese Nun. Ostensibly written by a nun cloistered in a provincial Portuguese convent to her departed lover an officer in the French army they are nowadays generally reputed to have been a literary fake authored by a seventeenth century French writer. The Portuguese Nun describes the foundation and development of the myth of Soror Mariana and illuminates its continuing investment in the fabrication by the country's cultural elite of a shared national imagination. It examines the process of national reappropriation of the text from the Romantic period until its latest postmodern manifestations exemplified most remarkably by the feminist manifesto Novas Cartas Portuguesas New Portuguese Letters. From its first retranslations into Portuguese in the early nineteenth century this slim collection of five love letters has retained its status of a somewhat improbable textual support for one of Portugal's most persistently cultivated cultural fictions.
