The work of the UK Border Agency Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Home Affairs Committee,2011-01-11 In this report the Home Affairs Committee highlights a number of areas where the UK Border Agency is not meeting the standards which both those using its services and the general public have the right to expect The committee singles out the continuing threat of delays and backlogs in processing asylum applications which it attributes at least in part to inadequate decision making in the first instance The committee reiterates its predecessors recommendations about tightening up the registration and inspection of colleges in order to close down bogus institutions established chiefly to enable people to bypass the restrictions on work related immigration to the UK It raises concerns that the programme to clear the historic backlog of 400 450 000 asylum cases will end in July 2011 with the Agency having been unable to discover what has happened to the claimants in up to one in seven 61 000 of the cases The passage of time means that the UK Border Agency is unlikely to trace 70 of the 1013 Foreign National Prisoners whose release without deportation led to Mr Charles Clarke s resignation as Home Secretary in 2005 There are concerns about the adequacy of the training and supervision of those involved in the enforced removal of unsuccessful asylum claimants Finally in the current economic situation a significantly lower salary should be paid to the successor to the outgoing head of the Agency
