its relevance to our understanding of what it means to be human and to the people places and cultures of the world in which we live This new edition contains New examples throughout consisting of contemporary research from a wider range of geographical contexts and by geographers from diverse backgrounds Comprehensive explorations of physical geography that combine updated coverage from the first edition with brand new material Updated discussions of spatial science and quantitative methods that include considerations of the role of place and specificity in quantitative work In depth examinations of the Anthropocene the uses of assemblage theory and the emergence of the GeoHumanities Perfect for students of undergraduate and graduate courses in geographic thought Geographic Thought A Critical Introduction will also earn a place in the libraries of students and scholars researching the history and philosophy of geography as well as practicing geographers

Planning Urban Places Mary Ganis, 2015-06-19 Urban change is often difficult because we are dealing with people's elusive notions of place and perception time and change Urban design and planning in a changing urban context so that it remains relevant for people is elusive because the idea of place is embedded in memory and identity but whose memory and whose identity This book seeks to understand the urban change dynamic so that the planning of urban places aligns with the dynamic of people's perception of place Planning Urban Places examines the premise that building cities is a concrete business surrounded by a shifting context It discusses the notion of urban design and placemaking from the perspective of place perception and cognitive psychology place philosophy and human geography It also considers network theory to help illustrate the self organising paradigm of small world network theory for planning urban places

Post-structuralist Geography Jonathan Murdoch, 2006 An introduction to post structuralist theory that critically assesses how the concept can be used to study space and place this text communicates a new agenda for the study of human geography

Policy, Geophilosophy and Education P. Taylor Webb, Kalervo N. Gulson, 2015-10-14 Education policy is premised on its instrumentalist approach This instrumentalism is based on narrow assumptions concerning people the subject decision making power problem solving science and methodology and knowledge epistemology Policy Geophilosophy and Education reconceptualises the object and hence the objectives of education policy Specifically the book illustrates how education policy positions and constitutes objects and subjects through emergent policy arrangements that simultaneously influence how policy is sensed embodied and enacted The book examines the disciplinary and multi disciplinary approaches to education policy analysis over the last sixty years and reveals how policy analysis constitutes the ontologies and epistemologies of policy In order to reconceptualise policy Policy Geophilosophy and Education uses ideas of spatiality affect and problematization from the disciplines of geography and philosophy The book problematizes case vignettes to illustrate the complex and often paradoxical relations between neo liberal education policy equity and educational inequalities produced in the representational registers of race and ethnicity

Encounters and Engagements between Economic and Cultural Geography Barney Warf, 2012-04-05 The intellectual renaissance of human geography has included a widespread engagement between its economic and cultural subdisciplines This volume adopts a variety of conceptual and empirical perspectives on the encounters between economic and cultural geographers It offers an introduction and 10 chapters by authors in a variety of national contexts to explicate issues such as the cultural turn in economic geography the cultural construction of economic geographic thought consumption gender everyday life commodity chain analysis trust networks the creative economy and tourism The volume contains empirical analyses utilizing both quantitative and qualitative approaches at spatial scales ranging from the individual to the global economy In illustrating how human geographers can ill afford to subscribe to the analytically false dichotomy between culture and the economy the book explicates how cultural and economic geography can be seamlessly integrated bringing them into a creative tension to their mutual benefit

Public Space and Relational Perspectives Chiara Tornaghi, Sabine Knierbein, 2014-12-05 Traditional approaches to understand space tend to view public space mainly as a shell or container focussing on its morphological structures and functional uses That way its ever changing meanings contested or challenged uses have been largely ignored as well as the contextual and on going dynamics between social actors their cultures and struggles The key role of space in enabling spatial opportunities for social action the fluidity of its social meaning and the changing degree of publicness of a space remain unexplored fields of academic inquiry and professional practice Public Space and Relational Perspectives offers a different understanding of public spaces in the city The aim of the book is to re introduce the lived experiences in public life into the teaching curricula of those academic disciplines which deal with public space and the built environment such as architecture planning and urban design as well as the social sciences The book presents conceptual practical and research challenges and brings together findings from activists practitioners and theorists The editors provide eight educational challenges that educators can endorse when training future practitioners and researchers to accept and to engage with the social relations that unfold in and through public space Cover image KARO

Cities to be Tamed? Spatial Investigations across the Urban South Beatrice De Carli, Francesco

Chiodelli, Maddalena Falletti, 2014-07-08 Across the global South the rapid urbanisation and uneven development that have occurred over the past few decades have brought to the surface a tight connection between social conflicts and urban space. Indeed the physical conformation of urban space is one of the primary factors that trigger social tensions with repercussions at the metropolitan, regional and national scales. Such tensions are related to the conditions of social and spatial inequality which characterise many urban areas across the South; they can also be connected to contingent political and institutional orders which find in the materiality of space both the means and the cause of conflicts among different groups amidst diverging territorial demands and the overlapping of competing struggles for power. At the same time new possibilities arise in the concreteness of space including innovative forms of local activism, adapting strategies of self organisation and unconventional relations between the formal and the informal city. On acknowledging the multifaceted nature of the urban space there arises a question which constitutes the core problem addressed by the book: are cities to be tamed? This volume gathers a series of cross disciplinary contributions on these topics spanning from architecture and urban design to planning, social theory and geography. These contributions revolve around two core themes. The first concerns the agency of design in contexts of informality and centres on the missing unexpected exchange between projects and realities. The second concerns the complex relationship between spatial planning, politics and conflicts in contexts characterised by marked ethnic, political and social tensions. Contributors: Alessandro Balducci, Scott A. Bollens, Jeffrey Chan, Kok Hui, Francesco Chiodelli, Laure Criqui, Viviana d'Auria, Beatrice De Carli, Bruno De Meulder, Annalies De Nijs, Maddalena Falletti, Nabeel Hamdi, Joud M. I. Khasawneh, Hamed Khosravi, Olivier Legrand, Colin Marx, Carmen Mendoza Arroyo, Lina Scavuzzo, Erez Tzfadia, Ignacio Castillo Ulloa, Faith Wong and Oren Yiftachel. Instituting Worlds. Catharina Gabrielsson, Marko Jobst, 2024-12-30 Islands have a long history of appealing to the architectural imagination and have served as sites for architectural expressions of cultural specificity, cultural conquest and cultural hybridisation over millennia. From offshore financial centres to immigrant detention camps, tourist havens to military bases, the architectures of islands concretise the forces at play in our contemporary crisis-ridden societies. Collecting writings by a wide range of established scholars together with exciting new voices in architecture and affiliated disciplines, this book shows the pertinence islands hold for critical spatial thinking and practice today. Covering war and colonialism, detention and tourism, the topics raised in this book range from issues of urban development to close readings of buildings, whether ruined, designed, projected, preserved or absent. Combining case studies, critical historiography and pieces of experimental writing, the chapters disclose the variety of ways in which architecture can be used as a lens for analysing, disclosing and untangling island specificity. This volume offers a very timely, vibrant and methodologically varied approach to the subject of architecture and islands. Its global reach, innovative outlook and rich material will be of interest to scholars and students in architecture, landscape architecture, geography and urban design and planning, alongside arts and literary studies. International Encyclopedia of Human Geography, 2019-11-29 International
