Post Medieval Pottery 1650 1800:

Post-medieval Pottery, 1650-1800 Jo Draper, 2008-03-04 The period from 1650 to 1800 is the most interesting and complex time in the development of English ceramics with new types of pottery being developed all through that period and with porcelain being made in Britain for the first time Wares ranged from the simple everyday earthenwares of the local potters up to the sophisticated products of Staffordshire and the porcelain factories This book combines the art historical or collector s approach with archaeologically excavated material Methods of production and decoration are explained and contemporary imports discussed Over a hundred pots are illustrated and a further reading list is included About the author Jo Draper was born in Hampshire She has published many archaeological reports and an even larger number of pottery reports Archaeologically excavated pottery led her to an interest in all ceramics especially those of the post medieval period Her work includes archaeology museums creating exhibitions and writing

English Slip-decorated Earthenware at Williamsburg Leslie Brown Grigsby, 1993 Illustrated catalog of Colonial Williamsburg s slipware collection This publication examines English slip decorated earthenwares many of which have an almost folk like quality in their naivety of form and decoration

London's Waterfront and its World, 1666-1800 John Schofield, Stephen Freeth, 2023-12-21 This volume covering the period 1666 1800 considers the archaeology of the port of London on a wide scale from the City down the Thames to Deptford During this period with the waterfront at its centre London became the hub of the new British empire contributing to the exploitation of people from other lands known as slavery

Mocha and Related Dipped Wares, 1770-1939 Jonathan Rickard, 2006 An authoritative guide to the history and craft of this rare and much sought after ceramic ware

Time's Anvil Richard Morris, 2012-11-22 A personal and lyrical rediscovery of the history of England through archaeology and the imagination History thrives on stories TIME S ANVIL explores archaeology s influence on what such stories say how they are told who tells them and how we listen In a dazzlingly wide ranging exploration Richard Morris casts fresh light on three quarters of a million years of history in the place we now think of as England Drawing upon genres that are usually pursued in isolation like biography poetry or physics he finds potent links between things we might imagine to be unrelated His subjects range from humanity s roots to the destruction of the wildwood from the first farmers to industrialization and from Tudor drama to 20th century conflict Each topic sits at a different point along the continuum between epoch and the fleeting moment In part this is a history of archaeology in part too it is a personal account of the author s history in archaeology But mainly it is about how the past is read and about what we bring to the reading as well as what we find The result is a book that defies categorisation but one which will by turns surprise enthrall and provoke anyone who cares for England who we are and where we have come from TIME S ANVIL was longlisted for the Samuel Johnson Prize for Non Fiction 2013

Household Ceramics at Port Royal, Jamaica, 1655-1692 Madeleine J. Donachie, 2003 In 1692 an earthquake destroyed and submerged half of the Jamaican city of Port Royal a thriving and prosperous commercial centre in the late 17th century      Interpreting the English Village Mick Aston, Christopher Gerrard, 2013-02-07 An original and approachable account of how archaeology can tell the story of the English village Shapwick lies in the middle of Somerset next to the important monastic centre of Glastonbury the abbey owned the manor for 800 years from the 8th to the 16th century and its abbots and officials had a great influence on the lives of the peasants who lived there It is possible that abbot Dunstan one of the great reformers of tenth century monasticism directed the planning of the village The Shapwick Project examined the development and history of an English parish and village over a ten thousand year period This was a truly multi disciplinary project Not only were a battery of archaeological and historical techniques explored such as field walking test pitting archaeological excavation aerial reconnaissance documentary research and cartographic analysis but numerous other techniques such as building analysis dendrochronological dating and soil analysis were undertaken on a large scale The result is a fascinating study about how the community lived and prospered in Shapwick In addition we learn how a group of enthusiastic and dedicated scholars unravelled this story As such there is much here to inspire and enthuse others who might want to embark on a landscape study of a parish or village area Seven of the ten chapters begin with a fictional vignette to bring the story of the village to life Text boxes elucidate re occurring themes and techniques Extensively illustrated in colour including 100 full page images      Highhays, Kilkenney Emma Devine, C  il  n    Drisceoil, 2022-08-09 This richly illustrated book presents the first comprehensive study of the making and marketing of pottery in medieval Ireland Focusing on a well preserved 14th century pottery production center which was excavated in 2006 at Highhays outside the walls of the renowned Anglo Norman town of Kilkenney in south east Ireland the authors describe its kiln workshops and working areas as well as its Highhays Ware products jugs jars cooking pots money boxes and ridge tiles Foremost amongst the outputs from the kiln site were high quality wheel thrown green glazed jugs that were closely modeled on French Saintonge and Bristol Redcliffe archetypes and the volume describes the distinctive processes kiln firing technology and raw materials that were employed to produce these and the other wares represented on the site The book also presents the results of an innovative plasma spectrometry and petrological analysis of Highhays Ware which facilitated identification of the source for the raw potting clays areas located at a considerable distance from Highhays in north county Kilkenney used in its production in addition to allowing for a study of the uncharacteristically broad distribution of the ware throughout the south east of Ireland The authors also place the production of pottery at Highhays in its broader context by presenting an overall review of the archaeological and historical evidence for pottery making and consumption in medieval Ireland as well as by exploring the cultural background and social status of potters in the Anglo Norman colony Supporting the analysis and interpretation of the Highhays site and its assemblage are specialist and scientific contributions on the pottery tiles ceramic production material metal finds coins and archaeobotanical and animal bone remains from the site archaeomagnetic and radiocarbon dating and plasma spectrometry and petrological analysis      The Importance of British Material Culture to Historical

Archaeologies of the Nineteenth Century Alasdair Brooks, 2016 Britain was the industrial and political powerhouse of the nineteenth century the birthplace of the Industrial Revolution and the center of the largest empire of the time With its broad imperial reach and even broader indirect influence Britain had a major impact on nineteenth century material culture worldwide Because British manufactured goods were widespread in British colonies and beyond a more nuanced understanding of those goods can enhance the archaeological study of the people who used them far beyond Britain's shores However until recently archaeologists have given relatively little attention to such goods in Britain itself thereby missing what is often revealing and useful contextual information for historical archaeologists working in countries where British goods were consumed while also leaving significant portions of Britain's own archaeological record poorly understood The Importance of British Material Culture to Historical Archaeologies of the Nineteenth Century helps fill these gaps through case studies demonstrating the importance and meaning of mass produced material culture in Britain from the birth of the Industrial Revolution mid 1700s to early World War II By examining many disparate items such as ceramics made for export various goods related to food culture Scottish land documents and artifacts of death these studies enrich both an understanding of Britain itself and the many places it influenced during the height of its international power

Eighteenth-century Ceramics Sarah Richards, 1999 This book probes the causes of and conditions for the preference of the members of the British Bangladeshi community for a religion based identity vis vis ethnicity based identity and the influence of Islamists in shaping the discourse The first book length study to examine identity politics among the Bangladeshi diaspora delves into the micro level dynamics the internal and external factors and the role of the state and locates these within the broad framework of Muslim identity and Islamism citizenship and the future of multiculturalism in Europe Empirically grounded but enriched with in depth analysis and written in an accessible language this study is an invaluable reference for academics policy makers and community activists Students and researchers of British politics ethnic migration diaspora studies cultural studies and political Islam will find the book extremely useful

Historical and Archaeological Perspectives on Gender Transformations Suzanne M. Spencer-Wood, 2012-12-09 In many facets of Western culture including archaeology there remains a legacy of perceiving gender divisions as natural innate and biological in origin This belief follows that men are naturally pre disposed to public intellectual pursuits while women are innately designed to care for the home and take care of children In the interpretation of material culture accepted notions of gender roles are often applied to new findings the dichotomy between the domestic sphere of women and the public sphere of men can color interpretations of new materials In this innovative volume the contributors focus explicitly on analyzing the materiality of historic changes in the domestic sphere around the world Combining a global scope with great temporal depth chapters in the volume explore how gender ideologies identities relationships power dynamics and practices were materially changed in the past thus showing how they could be changed in the future

Maritime Archaeology and Social Relations Virginia Dellino-Musgrave, 2006-11-22 This book analyses British action in the Southern hemisphere in the late 18th century examining two Royal Navy ships one off the Argentinean coast and one off the Southeast Australian coast The author goes beyond a descriptive analysis of wrecks by treating them and their cargoes as embodiments of 18th century social relations The book challenges traditional approaches providing a perspective that emphasises the richness diversity and complexity of British action

The Archaeology of Britain John Hunter, Ian Ralston, 1999 A comprehensive and up to date introduction to all the archaeological periods covering Britain from early prehistory to the industrial revolution It provides a one stop textbook for the entire archaeology of Britain
