

Psychodynamic Approaches

Psychoanalytic therapy

Founder
• Sigmund Freud

- A theory of personality development, a philosophy of human nature, and a method of psychotherapy that focuses on unconscious factors that motivate behavior
- Attention given to the events of the first six years of life as determinants of the later development of personality
- It has had a major influence on all forms of psychotherapy. Some therapeutic models are extensions of this theory, some a reaction against it.

Adlerian therapy

Founder
• Alfred Adler

Key Figure
• Rudolf Dreikurs

- This is a growth model that stresses assuming responsibility, creating one's own destiny, and finding meaning and goals to create a purposeful life
- Key concepts are used in most other current therapies
- Accounts for present behavior by studying childhood experience, it does not focus in unconscious dynamics

Experiential and Relationship-Oriented Therapies

Existential therapy

Key Figures
• Viktor Frankl
• Rollo May
• Irvin Yalom

- Reacting against the tendency to view therapy as a system of well-defined techniques, this model stresses building therapy on the basic conditions of human existence, such as choice, the freedom and responsibility to shape one's life, and self-determination
- It focuses on the quality of the person-to-person therapeutic relationship
- This approach is not a unified school of therapy with a clear theory and a systematic set of techniques
- It is a philosophy of counseling that stresses the divergent methods of understanding the subjective world of the person

Person-centered therapy

Founder
• Carl Rogers

Key Figure
• Natalie Rogers

- This approach was developed during the 1940s as a nondirective reaction against psychoanalysis
- Based on a subjective view of human experiencing, it places faith in and gives responsibility to the client in dealing with problems and concerns
- Philosophically, this approach assumes that clients have the capacity for self-direction without active intervention and direction on the therapist's part

Gestalt therapy

Founders
• Fritz & Laura Perls

Key Figures
• Miriam & Erving Polster

- An experiential therapy stressing awareness and integration; it grew as a reaction against analytic therapy
- Integrates the functioning of body and mind and places
- Emphasis on the therapeutic relationship
- The therapist takes the active role following the lead of their client
