Postmodern Political Communication The Fringe Challenges The Center:

Postmodern Political Communication Andrew King, 1992 Analyses of political dialogue have traditionally concentrated on structures of government or social movements drawing clear boundaries between the individual and the state In its examination of the marginal fringe groups struggling to secure power Postmodern Political Communication broadens our conception of political behavior and places new emphasis on the generation and invention of politics This volume s contributors examine the discourse of deviant oppressed and powerless groups from the point of view of empowerment that is how do such outsider groups engage the center and how are they able to use mass media to gain political power The authors study the discourse of those who seem most alienated from the formal political process religious cults youth gangs submerged culture groups and illegal aliens Their analyses concentrate on the ways in which postmodern discourse legitimizes distribution of power in the social order and disclose the ideological and political messages that underlie ordinary nonpolitical expression With its explorations of communicative theory and implications for praxis this work will appeal to a large audience of scholars and practitioners in political science and communications on the production diffusion transmission and impact of information in a political environment this book will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of politics governance democracy media and communication studies journalism cultural studies and South Asian studies

A Century of Communication Studies Pat J. Gehrke, William M. Keith, 2014-12-05 This volume chronicles the development of communication studies as a discipline providing a history of the field and identifying opportunities for future growth Editors Pat J Gehrke and William M Keith have assembled an exceptional list of communication scholars who in the thirteen chapters contained in this book cover the breadth and depth of the field Organized around themes and concepts that have enduring historical significance and wide appeal across numerous subfields of communication A Century of Communication Studies bridges research and pedagogy addressing themes that connect classroom practice and publication Published in the 100th anniversary year of the National Communication Association this collection highlights the evolution of communication studies and will serve future generations of scholars as a window into not only our past but also the field s collective possibilities

Chinese Communication Theory and Research Wenshan Jia, Xing Lu, D. Ray Heisey, 2002-06-30 A systematic examination of Chinese communication scholarship and comprehensive critique of its theories and methodologies are long overdue and in this new collection of essays by a multicultural group of scholars both aims are achieved Focusing on such relatively new fields as Chinese health communication and Chinese communication on the internet the volume addresses key questions about the state and the future of its field Both challenging and complementing the Western views of communication it advances theories of cultural and intercultural communication while at the same time broadening our understanding of the relevance of Chinese communication studies to communication studies overall and the ways in which this subdiscipline points the way toward a new and more complicated future The essayists whose origins include the United States Taiwan Hong Kong and China bring their many perspectives to bear on what is the most comprehensive and inclusive review of Chinese communication research literature published in English Of great benefit to Western and Eastern communication theorists philosophers of social science and Asian studies scholars Chinese Communication Theory and Research is an invaluable guide to an increasingly complex and significant field of study

The Inaugural Addresses of Twentieth-Century American Presidents Halford Ryan, 1993-06-30 The essays in Halford Ryan s The Inaugural Addresses of Twentieth Century American Presidents explore how presidents have used their addresses to empower themselves in office The volume s construct holds that the president delivers persuasive speeches to move the Congress and the people and to move the people to move the Congress if it is intransigent Even on Inauguration Day a largely ceremonial occasion the president seeks acquiescence and action from Congress and the people in his first rhetorical deed as the nation s chief executive officer Since scholars agree that the rhetorical presidency arose in the twentieth century with Theodore Roosevelt the book commences with Roosevelt s address followed by all subsequent presidents inaugurals including that of Bill Clinton The authors methodology applies classical rhetoric to the nexus of political discourse the interrelationships between the speaker the speech and the audience discussing vox populi elocutio inventio and actio Each of the chapters analyzes the political situation with regard to political purpose giving special attention to genre criticism and to the themes of campaign rhetoric that were or were not carried forth into the inaugural address The essayists explicate the evolution of each inaugural s preparation criticize its delivery and evaluate its persuasive strengths and weaknesses by accounting for its reception by the media and by the American people Recommended for scholars of political communication and rhetoric political science history and presidential studies The Social

Construction of International News Philo C. Wasburn,2002-11-30 Wasburn compares U S commercial news reports on a wide variety of events with those produced by the news media of several other nations The events include the Falklands War the Iran Iraq War the Tiananmen Square Uprising several political assassinations major trade disputes between the U S and Japan the Intifada U S presidential nominating conventions and a presidential inauguration Different patterns of coverage amount of attention given an event language used to describe an event selection of particular occurrences to characterize an event and descriptions of U S and international public opinion of the event are shown to reflect different political economic and strategic interests of nations historical contexts in which news was constructed national differences in values that influence the production of news and differences in historically specific relations between news media and the governments of their countries Attention is given to contrasts between the national image of the United States constructed by U S commercial news media and the images of the United States produced by various foreign news media This book will be of particular interest to scholars students and researchers involved with political communication journalism political science and political sociology Transitions and Non-Transitions from Communism Steven Saxonberg,2013-02-14 A unique comparative study examining why some communist regimes remain in power whilst others have fallen (Extra)Ordinary? Jade Alexander,Katarzyna Bronk,2018-05-15 Questioning what makes a celebrity and how celebrity is controlled dispersed and received are aspects branching out of Extra Ordinary s debate over celebrities as ordinary extraordinary Jade Alexander and Katarzyna Bronk together with the authors whose chapters make up this inter disciplinary discussion not only utilise the existing research on celebrity and fandom but they also go beyond the often quoted theorists to engage in multidirectional analyses of what it means to be a celebrity and what influence they have on the consuming public The present book provides an avenue for exploring not just what celebrity is as a discursive construction but also how this involves a complex interplay between celebrities the media and the audience Beyond Sport for Development and Peace Lyndsay M. C. Hayhurst,Tess Kay,Megan Chawansky,2015-10-05 Debates around the sport for development and peace SDP movement have entered a new phase moving on from simple questions surrounding the utility of sport as a tool of international development Beyond Sport for Development and Peace argues that critical research and new perspectives and methodologies are necessary to balance the local aspects and global influences of sport and to better understand the power relations embedded in SDP on a transnational scale As the era of the Millennium Development Goals gives way to a new agenda for sustainable development this book considers the position of SDP The book brings together contributors from 15 different countries across the developed and developing worlds including academic researchers and on the ground experts practitioners and policy makers to provide one of the most diverse set of perspectives assembled in SDP scholarship Looking to the renewed development agenda its authors explore theoretical policy and practical dimensions that address the broadening geographical and cultural spread of SDP the emergence of issues such as child protection within it its increased capacity for critical reflection on practice and its potential for new collaborative approaches to knowledge production Through its combination of academically led chapters paired with practice oriented responses it offers an important reconceptualization of SDP as a contributor to development policy and opens up important new avenues for studying and practising SDP Beyond Sport for Development and Peace is therefore essential reading for all researchers advanced students policy makers and practitioners working in sport development or international development Citizens, Political Communication, and Interest Groups John

Pierce,1992-11-30 This intriguing book investigates the technical information quandary created by post industrial changes which have produced demands for citizen involvement in public policy processes while complex scientific and technical issues increasingly make public involvement difficult Authors Pierce Steger Steel and Lovrich address the degree to which interest groups might serve to bridge the knowledge gap between public policy processes and the citizenry in U S and Canadian settings The focus of the study is on acid rain policy in Michigan and Ontario an area of considerable scientific and technical complexity as well as political and public interest The authors examine how the U S and Canadian publics acquire process and communicate policy relevant information so that it can influence policymaking Do interest groups play the information dissemination role in a manner that could address the technical information quandary Are interest groups playing the same or different roles in the United States and Canada What different factors cause U S and Canadian interest groups to behave as they do in the political arena Recommended for scholars of Political Science Communication Environmental Studies and Comparative Public Policy The QUARTERLY JOURNAL of SPEECH ,1994 Postmodern Studies ,1995 Consuming

St. Patrick's Day Dominic Bryan,Jonathan Skinner,2015-10-05 There is probably no national day that has such global popularity as St Patrick s Day On St Patrick s Day it is reputed that Everyone is Irish What are the factors and factions that give the day such popular appeal Is St Patrick s Day the same around the world in Japan Northern Ireland and Montserrat as it is in the Republic of Ireland and the United States Just how does Irishness figure in the celebration and commemoration of St Patrick s Day and how has this day been commoditized consumed and contested Does St Patrick s Day belong to the people the nation or the brewery This edited volume brings together the best St Patrick s Day and Irish Studies scholars from the fields of history anthropology sociology Irish studies diaspora studies and cultural studies The volume thematically explores how St Patrick s Day has been consumed from the symbolic to the literal the religious to the political By doing so it offers a fresh examination of its importance in contemporary society This volume will thus appeal to undergraduate and postgraduate students of Irish diaspora studies and Irish historians and scholars as well as to anthropology sociology and cultural studies students interested in exploring St Patrick s Day as a case study of globalization migration and commoditization International Journal of Communication ,2005 The Paradox of Empowerment Ronald F.

Wendt,2001-04-30 Wendt provides a collection of critical stories examining the power and politics of organizational life He looks at workers in frustrating situations and explores a new type of power that is simultaneously beneficial and detrimental The talk language and discourse that constitute the micro paradoxes of work life are investigated Starting with the concept of corporate hegemony Wendt looks at its language provides stories illustrating hegemony and helps the reader envision how hegemony carries over to other social realms like higher education After exploring the possibility of counter hegemonic resistance including tactical storytelling Wendt sets forth a new theory of suspended power While he shows there is no clear answer or response to the politics of corporate hegemony because it is a persistent dilemma he points the reader to the uses of critical theory to understand and adjust to contemporary power dynamics Of particular interest to scholars and students involved with communication management and cultural studies Cold War Analytical Structures and the Post

Post-War World Cori E. Dauber,1993-02-22 This volume takes a perspective on the debate over deterrence theory that has never been used before Other books either address the differences between the two competing schools of thought those who support Mutual Assured Destruction MAD and those who support nuclear warfighting or examine particular policies from within the perspective of one or the other school of thought Cori Dauber examines deterrence theory at a structural level which allows a focus on the similarities between the major perspectives on nuclear strategic doctrine By examining such issues as validity standards and the evaluation of evidence Dauber is able to assess deterrence as a theory of persuasion and to examine the way deterrence discourse so shapes the thinking of policy makers and analysts that it still drives our analysis of alternatives even in the post Soviet era Dauber concludes that deterrence is a system designed to use weapons capabilities as a form of non verbal communication with an Other for the last forty years the Soviet Other Understanding these rhetorical structures and the way they function is essential in predicting the restrictions that deterrence places on the way the United States responds to foreign nations Cold War Analytical Structures and the Post Post War World serves as a model for how scholars in argument and persuasion can apply their methods to real world situations Civic Discourse, Civil Society, and Chinese Communities Randy Kluver,John H. Powers,1999-11-10 The purpose of this volume is to bring together a set of chapters that investigate the communication practices through which Chinese societies are creating their civil foundations for the next millennium Civic Discourse Civil Society and Chinese Communities reflects both the emphasis on analyzing specific discursive practices in particular Chinese societies and on understanding the role that discursive practices play in the development of civil society more generally Broadcasting Propaganda Philo C. Wasburn,1992-10-26 Today hundreds of millions of people throughout the world depend on international radio broadcasting for their understanding of national and international political affairs Broadcasting Propaganda represents the first application of theory and research in sociology and communication to analyze the contents of this medium of international political communication Wasburn illustrates how two theoretical perspectives social construction of reality theory and media system dependency theory can be applied to understand the ways in which nations use symbolic means to position themselves in the international arena of political competition The study begins with two chapters that outline the history of international radio broadcasting identifying the medium s involvement in maintaining colonial empires supporting wars promoting revolutionary and counterrevolutionary action and legitimating the policies of sponsoring states The third chapter introduces social construction of reality theory and media system dependency theory indicating their relevance to understanding the newscasts and other programming of international broadcasting organizations The two following chapters present empirical case studies of international broadcasting one analyzes Voice of America and Radio Moscow broadcasts to the Third World toward the end of the Cold War the other explores South Africa s use of radio to broadcast counter propaganda In the sixth and final chapter Wasburn winds up his discussion by charting the the possible course of broadcasting in light of the world political situation since 1989 and suggests an agenda for future research

The Presidential Campaign Film Joanne Morreale, 1996-02-16 Morreale traces the development of the documentary films produced for presidential candidates from Calvin Coolidge in 1923 to George Bush and Bill Clinton in 1992 The work provides insight into today s visually oriented presidential campaign by analyzing the production of candidates images as the films evolve from classical to modern forms Campaign films are usually overlooked by campaign scholars yet they provide the fullest available visual portrait of a candidate during a campaign they encapsulate persuasive appeals and strategies and they illustrate Republican and Democratic candidates different approaches to mediated communication Morreale concludes that presidential campaign films provide a lens through which we can view both changes and continuities in American politics and culture Recommended for scholars and students of communication political science and history
