Health Promotion Ethics Ruth Cross, Louise Warwick-Booth, James Woodall, 2023-10-31 Health Promotion Ethics A Framework for Social Justice critically considers the ethical dimensions of promoting health with individuals and communities encouraging a nuanced understanding of health promotion in the context of fairness empowerment and social justice The concept of social justice indeed is central The book explores how health promotion should be considered in relation to moral social and legal issues from individual responsibility to government intervention as well as the possibility that existing practice maintains rather than alleviates existing health inequalities by stigmatising certain groups It also questions the rights of those who promote health to use particular strategies for example using fear to encourage behaviour change The ethics of health promotion practice and research are considered introducing several important debates Case studies international material and opportunities to reflect on practice are used throughout to bring the important issues under discussion to life engaging both students and practitioners alike The book provides a fascinating route to reflect on what it really means to promote health for all in a more equitable way

Orphan Crops: Breeding and Biotechnology for Sustainable Agriculture, Food and Nutrition Simon E. Bull, Jill Margaret Farrant, Rita Hogan Mumm, Zerihem Tadele, 2024-01-18 Orphan crops play an important role in food and nutrition security especially in growing economies where small holder farmers produce the majority of food Despite their importance in global agriculture and their often remarkable nutrient content and adaptation to challenging environmental conditions orphan crops have received limited attention by the scientific community and industry However the diversity of neglected plant species provides a large genetic resource that could significantly contribute to broadening the biodiversity of trait desired crops for novel value chains sustainable development and food security The uptake of new plant breeding techniques notably genome editing as well as omic tools are now accelerating translation of basic research and facilitating the exploration of orphan crops These advancements also give rise to public and politic engagement discussions to maximize socio economic impact Given that the greatest need for food and nutritional security is in growing economies issues of food sovereignty and sustainability of their food systems become front and centre There is now an exceptional opportunity to tackle some of the major current challenges in agriculture including climate change sustainable cropping systems food quality and nutritional security through broadening research in wild relatives of crops and on orphan species This Research Topic seeks to showcase research on neglected plants using advanced molecular technologies e g genome sequencing omics etc and new plant breeding approaches methods and tools This Research Topic will also discuss the challenges and opportunities arising when modern breeding techniques are applied for translational research

In the Sphere of the Personal: New Perspectives in the Philosophy of Persons James Beauregard, Simon Smith, 2016-05-01 The papers in this collection were originally presented at the 13th International Conference on Persons held at the University of Boston in August 2015 This biennial event founded by Thomas O Buford and Charles Conti in 1989 attracts a host of international scholars both the venerable and the aspiring It is widely regarded as the premier event for those whose research concerns the philosophical tradition known as personalism That tradition is perhaps best known today in its American and European manifestations although there remains a small but fiercely defended stronghold in Britain Personalism is not an exclusively Western development however its roots are also found in India China and Japan What unites these disparate intellectual cultures may seem quite small There is little if any methodological or doctrinal consensus among them They are all however responses to the impersonal and depersonalising forces perceived to be at work in philosophy theology and most recently the natural and political sciences Their common aim is to place persons at the heart of these discourses to defend the idea that persons are the metaphysical epistemological and moral bottom line the vital clue to knowledge of self reality and all conceivable values The authors in this collection do not simply reflect upon this tradition they put it to work on a range of philosophical and theological problems both classical and contemporary problems of free will personal identity and the nature of reality as well as the very current concerns of environmental philosophers bio and neuro ethicists Their perspectives too are many and varied so offer profound insights into key debates among other philosophical traditions such as the Kantian Hegelian phenomenological and process schools
