Power And Change In Central Asia:

Power and Change in Central Asia Sally Cummings, 2004-01-14 This volume offers the first systematic comparison of political change leadership style and stability in Central Asia The contributors all leading international specialists on the region offer focused case studies of Kazakhstan Kyrgyzstan Tajikistan Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan comparing how the regimes have further consolidated their power and resisted change Power and Change in Central Asia Sally Cummings, 2004-01-14 This volume offers the first systematic comparison of political change leadership style and stability in Central Asia The contributors all leading international specialists on the region offer focused case studies of Kazakhstan Kyrgyzstan Tajikistan Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan comparing how the regimes have further consolidated their power and resisted change Power and Water in Central Asia Filippo Menga, 2017-12-01 Water is an irreplaceable and transient resource which crosses political boundaries in the form of rivers lakes and groundwater aquifers The collapse of the Soviet Union in 1991 led to the birth of fifteen countries including the five Central Asian republics Kazakhstan Kyrgyzstan Tajikistan Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan When the USSR ceased to exist so did the centralised Soviet resource distribution system that managed the exchange and allocation of water energy and food supplies A whole new set of international relations emerged and the newly formed Central Asian governments had to redefine the policies related to the exchange and sharing of their natural resources This book analyses the role of state power in transboundary water relations It provides an in depth study of the evolution of interstate relations in Central Asia in the field of water from 1991 2015 Taking as a case study the planned construction of the Rogun and Kambarata dams in Tajikistan and Kyrgyzstan the author examines various forms of overt and covert power shaping interstate relations and the way hegemonic and counter hegemonic measures are put in place in an international river basin He argues that the intimate correlation between the concepts of power and hegemony can offer key insights to the analysis and understanding of transboundary water relations While the analytical focus is placed on state power the book demonstrates that hegemonic and counter hegemonic tactics represent the ways in which power is wielded and observed Offering fresh theoretical interpretations to the subjects of power and counter hegemony in the Aral Sea basin this book puts forward the original circle of hydro hegemony an analytical framework in which the various forms of power are connective in the function of hegemony It will be of interest to scholars in the field of water and environmental politics and Central Asian Studies Symbolism and Power in Central Asia Sally Cummings, 2013-09-13 With the collapse of communism post communist societies scrambled to find meaning to their new independence Central Asia was no exception Events relationships gestures spatial units and objects produced conveyed and interpreted meaning The new power container of the five independent states of Kazakhstan Kyrgyzstan Tajikistan Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan would significantly influence this process of signification Post Soviet Central Asia is an intriguing field to examine this transformation a region which did not see an organised independence movement develop prior to Soviet implosion at the centre it provokes questions about how symbolisation begins in the absence of a national will to do so The transformation overnight of Soviet republic into sovereign state provokes questions about how the process of communism turned nationalism could become symbolised and what specific role symbols came to play in these early years of independence Characterized by authoritarianism since 1991 the region's ruling elites have enjoyed disproportionate access to knowledge and to deciding what how and when that knowledge should be applied The first of its kind on Central Asia this book not only widens our understandings of developments in this geopolitically important region but also contributes to broader studies of representation ritual power and identity This book was published as a special issue of Europe Asia Studies Climate Change in Central Asia Rahat Sabyrbekov, Indra Overland, Roman Vakulchuk, 2023-04-13 This open access book explores climate change impacts adaptation and mitigation in Central Asia and discusses policy options for the Central Asian governments To address the urgent need for local scholarship on climate change in Central Asia and in particular the need for more research by social scientists this book features a wide range of contributions on climate change impacts adaptation and mitigation in the region Each chapter makes an important contribution to social science scholarship on climate change and decarbonization in Central Asia Topics include decarbonization opportunities carbon pricing instruments the geo economics of the energy transition the relationship between human mobility and climate change The book thus offers valuable insights for both academics and policymakers Power, Networks and Violent Conflict in Central Asia Idil Tunçer-Kılavuz, 2014-06-27 When the five Central Asian republics gained independence from the Soviet Union in 1991 expectations of violent conflict were widespread Indeed the country of Tajikistan suffered a five year civil war from 1992 to 1997 The factors that the literature on civil wars in general and on the Tajikistan civil war in particular cites as the causes of war were also present in Uzbekistan but this country had a peaceful transition Examining this empirical puzzle by isolating the crucial factors that caused war to break out in Tajikistan but not Uzbekistan this book applies a powerful comparative approach to the broader question of why civil wars occur Based on fieldwork in both countries it challenges many common explanations of civil war both generally and in Tajikistan in particular This includes highlighting the importance of elites power perceptions which have their origins in the interaction of structural process and network related variables Without examining these interactions macro structural explanations alone cannot explain the occurrence of civil war in one country and its absence in another Applying the insights of bargaining theories of war from the literature on international relations to the civil war in Tajikistan this book will be of interest to students of violent conflict civil wars Central Asia and Asian Politics The European Union's Normative Power in Central Asia G. Voloshin, 2014-08-19 The normative power of the European Union has historically been a key element of its foreign policy This study considers the EU's Central Asia policy questioning whether the EU's normative power can work in this remote region Institutional Change and Political Continuity in Post-Soviet Central Asia Pauline Jones Luong, 2002-04-29 The establishment of electoral systems in Kazakhstan Kyrgyzstan and Uzbekistan presents both a complex set of empirical puzzles and a theoretical challenge Why did three states with similar cultural historical and structural legacies establish such different electoral systems How did these distinct outcomes result from strikingly similar institutional design processes Explaining these puzzles requires understanding not only the outcome of institutional design but also the intricacies of the process that led to this outcome Moreover the transitional context in which these three states designed new electoral rules necessitates an approach that explicitly links process and outcome in a dynamic setting This book provides such an approach Finally it both builds on the key insights of the dominant approaches to explaining institutional origin and change and transcends these approaches by moving beyond the structure versus agency debate

Movement, Power and Place in Central Asia and Beyond Madeleine Reeves, 2013-09-13 Central Asia is a region singularly marked by attempts to transform social life by transforming place Drawing together established scholars and a new generation of historians geographers and anthropologists this volume brings empirical specificity and theoretical depth to debates about the politics of place making in this diverse region making an important contribution to Central Asian studies and a distinctive regional comparison to the spatial turn in social analysis Case studies draw on archival research and oral history to explore the workings and unintended consequences of policies aimed at sedentarizing collectivizing and resettling populations as a means to fix and territorialize space The book also examines ethnographic studies attuned to the role of movement in sustaining social life from Soviet era trade networks that linked rural Central Asia and the Russian metropolis to pilgrimage routes through which kazakhness is articulated to the contemporary moralization of migration abroad in search of work Rather than analysing flows as abstract processes the book enquires about effortful activity material infrastructures political relations and social habits through which people ideas knowledge skills and material objects move or are prevented from moving As such it offers new insights into the complex intersections of movement power and place in this important region over the last two centuries This book was originally published as a special issue of Central Asian Survey

Moving in the Margins: Desert Travel and Power in Medieval Central Asia Paul D. Wordsworth, 2024-09-23 Central Asia has been perceived as a landscape of connections of Silk Roads, an endless plain across which waves of conquerors swiftly rode on horseback. In reality, the region is highly fragmented and difficult to traverse, and overcoming these obstacles led to routes becoming associated with epic travel and high value trade. Put simply, the inhabitants of these lands became experts in the art of travelling the margins. This volume seeks to unravel some of the myths of long distance roads in Central Asia, using a desert case study to put forward a new hypothesis for how medieval landscapes were controlled and manipulated.

Ethnicity, Authority, and Power in Central Asia Robert L. Canfield, Gabriele Rasuly-Paleczek, 2010-10-04 The peoples of Greater Central Asia, not only Inner Asian states of the Soviet Union but also those who share similar heritages in adjacent countries like Afghanistan and Pakistan, Iran and the Chinese province of Xinjiang, have been drawn into more direct and immediate contact since the Soviet collapse. Infrastructural improvements and the race by the great powers for access to the region's vital natural resources have allowed these peoples to develop closer ties with each other and the wider world, creating new interdependencies and fresh opportunities for interaction and the exercise of influence. They are being integrated into a new wider economic and political region which is increasingly significant in world affairs owing to its strategically central location and its complex and uncertain politics. However, most of its inhabitants are pre-eminently concerned with familial and local affairs. This work examines the viewpoints and concerns of a selection of groups in terms of four issues: government repression, ethnic group perspectives, devices of mutual support and informal grounds of authority and influence. Responding to a need for in-depth studies concerning the social structures and practices in the region, the book examines trends and issues from the point of view of scholars who have lived and worked on the ground and have sought to understand the conditions and concerns of people in rural as well as urban settings. It provides a distinctive and timely perspective on this vital part of the world.

Central Asia in Retrospect & Prospect Mushtaq A. Kaw, 2010-01-01 Central Asia assimilated several alien traditions and trends and also forged conflicts and contradictions among the peoples of the region. Therefore, it cannot be understood without comprehension of its glorious past and budding present. This compendium of thirty-five papers presented at an international conference organized by the Centre of Central Asian Studies, University of Kashmir, Srinagar, attempts to examine the various dynamics of Central Asia. It addresses a wide range of issues concerning Central Asia's geo-politics and geo-strategy, geo-economics, historico-cultural relations and its relations with other countries of the
