Pate,2005 Livestock markets for the sale and distribution of meat developed as early as the days of colonial America In the mid nineteenth century as westward expansion increased and railroads developed stockyard companies formed in order to meet the demand of a growing nation Contrary to markets these companies were centrally organized and managed by a select few principal partners America's Historic Stockyards Livestock Hotels is an examination of such stockyards from their early beginnings to their eventual decline. Stockyards helped to establish some of America's greatest cities. Early on the scene were stockyards in cities such as Cincinnati otherwise known as Porkopolis and meat stockyards and packing powerhouse Chicago which was considered the number one livestock market in the nation. Markets soon opened in the Midwest and eventually expanded further westward to California and Oregon. Other smaller markets made large contributions to the industry. The cow towns of Fort Worth and Wichita never reached the status of Chicago but did have large livestock receipts. Fort Worth for instance became the largest horse and mule market in 1915 as World War I produced an increased demand for these animals. Meatpacking moguls known as the Big Four: Phillip Armour, Gustavus Swift, Nelson Morris and Edward Cudahy usually financed these growing markets, controlled the meatpacking business and in turn the stockyards companies. Although the members changed, this oligopoly remained intact for much of the duration of the stockyards industry. However, as railways gave way to highways, the markets declined and so too did these moguls. By the end of the twentieth century, almost every major market closed, bringing an end to the stockyard era.

J. Nell Pate's examination of this era, The people and the markets themselves, recounts a significant part of the history of America's meat industry. *The War of the rebellion: a compilation of the official records of the Union and Confederate armies, prepared by R.N. Scott [and others], 4 ser. 69 vols. [in 127 pt. 'Additions and corrections', dated 1902, have been inserted in the vols. With] Ser.1. Sagebrush Soldier Sherry L. Smith, 2001-05-14. Sagebrush Soldier is an account of military life during the Indian Wars in the late nineteenth century West. Private William Earl Smith describes daily camp life, battle scenes and the behavior of famous men: Ranald Mackenzie and George Crook in public and private poses. His diary covers the war from the enlisted men's viewpoint as he worries about what he will eat and how he will keep warm in freezing conditions and how he will keep calm when bullied by the sergeant major of whom he says he would give five years of my life to have walked up to him and smacked him in the nose. To complete the picture of the Sioux War and particularly the Powder River Expedition, Sherry Smith frames Private Smith's narrative with contemporary accounts written by other participants in these events. She assembles a balanced, comprehensive history by also incorporating the testimony of officers, their Indian scouts and allies and their enemy, the Northern Cheyennes.

In camp on Christmas Eve 1876, Smith bought a can of peaches which cost him two dollars to share with his bunkmate. Meanwhile he sees another man give ten dollars for a bottle of whiskey. His own words best convey the feelings of a young man far from home at Christmas: We had a regular Old Christmas Dinner a little piece of fat bacon and hard tack and a half cup of coffee. You bet I thought of home now if ever I did. But fate was a game and I could not be there. My bunkmate bought some candy and we ate it. Christmas candy and thoughts of home, some things never change, as readers will learn in this picture of military life, unique in its eloquent honesty.
