

Some chapters do grapple with wider issues. Ross Robinson ("Regional Ports: Development and Change since the 1970s") explains how containerization has helped to redefine the port hierarchy by accelerating primacy both within individual countries and, through the role of Singapore, within Southeast Asia as a whole. Christopher Kissling ("ASEAN Air Transport") hints at something similar with two fascinating maps of intra-ASEAN flight frequencies and international flight frequencies of ASEAN airlines yet fails to analyze the phenomenon. None of this surfaces in the final chapter, which remains committed to a country approach. There is no recognition that the integration of transport systems across Southeast Asia makes a comparative analysis of transport systems by country a fairly illogical exercise. The book does, however, provide an obvious explanation of why the various countries of Southeast Asia have pursued rather similar transport policies (p. 6). The other chapter that focuses on development is that of Andrew Spencer ("Urban Transport"). In addition to addressing issues in urban transport it outlines the impact of transport improvements upon urban land use and mobility and also explores the equity implications of alternative transport strategies within the formal/informal sector paradigm.

From the perspective of development, the book is a disappointment. Far from integrating transport with development, it perpetuates the attitude that transport can be studied in isolation by industry specialists. Its approach of "progress, problems and policies" constrains it to an industry view. Nevertheless, for anyone seeking an overview of what is happening in Southeast Asian transport, this book can be recommended as a useful guide for some years to come.

Rapid Rural Appraisal in Northeast Thailand: Case Studies. Edited by GEORGE W. LOVELACE, SUKASINEE SUBHADHIRA, and SUCHINT SIMARAKS. Khon Kaen: Khon Kaen University, 1988. 164 pp.

These two volumes represent a synthesis of the learning process that has accompanied the emergence of Rapid Rural Appraisal (RRA) as a new and potentially valuable tool for rural development practitioners in Asia, Africa, and Latin America. Although not produced as a companion set, these two books summarize the level of critical thinking and variety of applications to which these new tools can be applied. These two volumes contain material of importance for almost everyone in the development field; they should be sufficient to convince both practitioners and the most skeptical of academic critics of the creditability of RRA.

As these books highlight, RRA is fundamentally a process of learning about rural conditions in an intensive, iterative, and cost-effective manner. It is typically associated with small multidisciplinary teams; a variety of methods that stress "triangulation" of research questions; and repetitive investigations which reduce errors in understanding by continually cross-checking and refining acquired knowledge. RRA methods also emphasize valuing indigenous knowledge as a way of closing the information gap between development professionals and rural inhabitants. Voices from the Forest Malcolm Cairns, 2010-09-30 This handbook of locally based agricultural practices brings together the best of science and farmer experimentation vividly illustrating the enormous diversity of shifting cultivation systems as well as the power of human ingenuity Environmentalists have tended to disparage shifting cultivation sometimes called swidden cultivation or slash and burn agriculture as unsustainable due to its supposed role in deforestation and land degradation However a growing body of evidence indicates that such indigenous practices as they have evolved over time can be highly adaptive to land and ecology In contrast scientific agricultural solutions imposed from outside can be far more damaging to the environment Moreover these external solutions often fail to recognize the extent to which an agricultural system supports a way of life along with a society's food needs They do not recognize the degree to which the sustainability of a culture is intimately associated with the sustainability and continuity of its agricultural system Unprecedented in ambition and scope Voices from the Forest focuses on successful agricultural strategies of upland farmers More than 100 scholars from 19 countries including agricultural economists ecologists and anthropologists collaborated in the analysis of different fallow management typologies working in conjunction with hundreds of indigenous farmers of different cultures and a broad range of climates crops and soil conditions By sharing this knowledge and combining it with new scientific and technical advances the authors hope to make indigenous practices and experience more widely accessible and better understood not only by researchers and development practitioners but by other communities of farmers around the world

Willmott, 2005 Geography in America at the Dawn of the 21st Century surveys American geographers' current research in their specialty areas and tracks trends and innovations in the many subfields of geography. As such, it is both a state of the discipline assessment and a topical reference. It includes an introduction by the editors and 47 chapters, each on a specific specialty. The authors of each chapter were chosen by their specialty group of the American Association of Geographers (AAG). Based on a process of review and revision, the chapters in this volume have become truly representative of the recent scholarship of American geographers. While it focuses on work since 1990, it additionally includes related prior work and work by non-American geographers. The initial Geography in America was published in 1989 and has become a benchmark reference of American geographical research during the 1980s. This latest volume is completely new and features a preface written by the eminent geographer Gilbert White.
