Rewriting the Return to Africa Anne M. François,2011-08-16 Rewriting The Return to Africa Voices of Francophone Caribbean Women Writers examines the ways Guadeloupean women writers Maryse Condé Simone Schwarz Bart and Myriam Warner Vieyra demystify the theme of the return to Africa as opposed to the masculinist version by Négritude male writers from the 1930s to 1960s Négritude a cultural and literary movement drew much of its strength from the idea of a mythical or cultural reconnection with the African past allegorized as a mother figure In contrast these women writers of the post colonial era who are to large extent heirs of Négritude differ sharply from their male counterparts in their representation of Africa In their novels the continent is not represented as a propitious mother figure but a disappointing father figure This study argues that these women writers subversion of the metaphorical figure of Africa and its transformation is tied to their gender The women novelists are indeed critical of a female allegorization of the land that is reminiscent of a colonial or nationalist project and a simplistic representation of motherhood that does not reflect the complexities of the Diaspora's relation to origins and identity Unlike the primary male writers of the Négritude movement they carefully gendered the notion of return by choosing female protagonists who made their way back to the Motherland in search of identity I argue that writing is a more suitable space for the female subject seeking identity because it allows her to have a voice and become subject rather than object as that was the case with the Négritude writers The women writers shattering of the image of Mother Africa and subsequently that of Father Africa highlights the complex relationship between Africa and the Diaspora

Food from the Sea Rachel Carson, 1943 Millions of Americans are developing new wartime food habits trying foods they once neglected turning to alternates for long familiar products For everyone of the ten fish or shellfish that make up more than four fifths of New England's catch there are seven species little known or utilized many of which could provide tasty and nutritious foods Turning to these underutilized species will conserve food resources by lifting the burden of over exploitation from such fishes as cod and haddock and will augment dwindling supplies of protein foods Exploring the seafood markets for unfamiliar species rewards the housewife and her family with delightful taste surprises for scarcely any other class of food offers so great a variety so rich
