Revealing Documents Guide To African American Manuscript Sources:

Revealing Documents, 1993 Archival Information Steven Fisher, 2004-03-30 From original manuscripts and letters to sound recordings and birth certificates archival information plays an increasingly important role in modern research Libraries and the Internet have made finding information on a wide range of topics faster and easier but not all information particularly from primary sources is available via local library branches or online resources Using archival information presents its own challenges Materials are often located in many different places public or academic libraries government agencies historical societies or museums They are usually kept in secured areas where the public is restricted from browsing This definitive guide shows novice and experienced researchers how to find archival information It provides tips on how to use archival materials effectively and efficiently Topics covered include government archives science and technology collections military archives genealogical records business and corporate archives performing arts archives and sports collections Also provided is an overview of the world of archives including archival terminology how to contact archives and archival etiquette Whether searching for a noted author's original manuscripts trying to locate presidential papers or tracking down a repository of oral histories Archival Information is an indispensable reference

Women and the Historical Enterprise in America: Gender, Race and the Politics of Memory Julie Des Jardins, 2004-07-21 In Women and the Historical Enterprise in America Julie Des Jardins explores American women's participation in the practice of history from the late nineteenth century through the end of World War II a period in which history became professionalized as an increasingly masculine field of scientific inquiry Des Jardins shows how women nevertheless transformed the profession during these years in their roles as writers preservationists educators archivists government workers and social activists Des Jardins explores the work of a wide variety of women historians both professional and amateur popular and scholarly conservative and radical white and nonwhite Although their ability to earn professional credentials and gain research access to official documents was limited by their gender and often by their race these historians addressed important new questions and represented social groups traditionally omitted from the historical record such as workers African Americans Native Americans and religious minorities Assessing the historical contributions of Mary Beard Zora Neale Hurston Angie Debo Mari Sandoz Lucy Salmon Mary McLeod Bethune Dorothy Porter Nellie Neilson and many others Des Jardins argues that women working within the broadest confines of the historical enterprise collectively brought the new perspectives of social and cultural history to the study of a multifaceted American past In the process they not only developed the field of women's history but also influenced the creation of our national memory in the twentieth century
