Revising Flannery O'Connor Southern Literary Culture And The Problem Of Female Authorship:

Revising Flannery O'Connor Katherine Hemple Prown, 2001 Revising Flannery O'Connor Katherine Hemple Prown, 2001 In Revising Flannery O'Connor Katherine Hemple Prown addresses the conflicts O'Connor experienced as a southern lady and professional author Placing gender at the center of her analytical framework Prown considers the reasons for feminist critical neglect of the writer and traces the cultural origins of the complicated aesthetic that informs O'Connor's fiction but published and unpublished The Centrality of Crime Fiction in American Literary Culture Alfred Bendixen, Olivia Carr Edenfield, 2017-06-26 This collection of essays by leading scholars insists on a larger recognition of the importance and diversity of crime fiction in U.S. literary traditions Instead of presenting the genre as the property of Dashiell Hammett and Raymond Chandler this book maps a larger territory which includes the domains of Mark Twain F. Scott Fitzgerald William Faulkner Richard Wright Flannery O'Connor Cormac McCarthy and other masters of fiction The essays in this collection pay detailed attention to both the genuine artistry and the cultural significance of crime fiction in the United States It emphasizes American crime fiction's inquiry into the nature of democratic society and its exploration of injustices based on race class and or gender that are specifically located in the details of American experience Each of these essays exists on its own terms as a significant contribution to scholarship but when brought together the collection becomes larger than the sum of its pieces in detailing the centrality of crime fiction to American literature This is a crucial book for all students of American fiction as well as for those interested in the literary treatment of crime and detection and also has broad appeal for classes in American popular culture and American modernism Approaches to Teaching the Works of Flannery O'Connor Robert Donahoo, Marshall Bruce Gentry, 2019-09-01 Offers pedagogical techniques for teaching the works of Flannery O'Connor including considerations of race whiteness class religion disability gender technology the environment and the post World War II period Gives syllabus suggestions for undergraduate and graduate courses in American literature Southern literature creative writing and women's studies Inside the Church of Flannery O'Connor Joanne Halleran McMullen, Jon Parrish Peede, 2008 Concerning the debate of classifying O'Connor as a religious writer this book features essays by some of the leading scholars who have advanced the codification of O'Connor as a writer preoccupied with religious and especially Catholic themes Flannery O'Connor, Hermit Novelist Richard Giannone, 2012-09-07 2001 Choice Outstanding Academic Title A compelling study of O'Connor's fiction as illuminated by the teaching of the desert monastics Lord I'm glad I'm a hermit novelist Flannery O'Connor wrote to a friend in 1957 Sequestered by ill health O'Connor spent the final thirteen years of her life on her isolated family farm in rural Georgia During this productive time she developed a fascination with fourth century Christians who retreated to the desert for spiritual replenishment and whose isolation suffering and faith mirrored her own In Flannery O'Connor Hermit Novelist Richard Giannone explores O'Connor's identification with these early Christian monastics and the ways in which she infused her fiction with their teachings

Surveying the influences of the desert fathers on O'Connor's protagonists Giannone shows how her characters are moved toward a radical simplicity of ascetic discipline as a means of confronting both internal and worldly evils while being drawn closer to God. Artfully bridging literary analysis, O'Connor's biography and monastic writings, Giannone's study explores O'Connor's advocacy of self-denial and self-scrutiny as vital spiritual weapons that might be brought to bear against the antagonistic forces she found rampant in modern American life. Handbook of Literary Apologetics Thomas L.

Martin, 2025-08-18 Literature's probative force travels across the realm of sense in this world to what lies beyond it. When we speak of what is beyond our grasp in this world, we think most immediately of the world of the spirit. Shakespeare famously celebrates literature's power to explore the forms of things unknown. How many great works of literature guide us through a familiar world to the edge of the spiritual unknown. Not only Shakespeare but Dante, Milton, Dostoevsky, Hopkins, Eliot, O'Connor, and many others in these pages carry us there. This book follows their quest. Literary apologetics is the study of the characteristic moves by the authors who take readers on their journey of faith with them. Most notably, that tradition begins with Latin authors, spreads across Europe in a continuous literary culture, and extends over world literature to the present day. While early apologetics is proclamation, rhetoric, philosophy, and poetry, above all, it is witness to the faith manifesting itself in time. The early faith community produces a distinct literary culture as Christian witness takes all these forms and more. From then until now, this kind of literature probes ultimate questions, adumbrates numinous experience, and extrapolates ethical outcomes of Christian teachings across a wide variety of literary forms. The Handbook of Literary Apologetics provides an authoritative introduction to the scope of this tradition and its major figures. Handbook of the American Novel of the Twentieth and Twenty-First Centuries Timo Müller, 2017-01-11 Increasing specialization within the discipline of English and American Studies has shifted the focus of scholarly discussion toward theoretical reflection and cultural contexts. These developments have benefitted the discipline in more ways than one, but they have also resulted in a certain neglect of close reading. As a result, students and researchers interested in such material are forced to turn to scholarship from the 1960s and 1970s, much of which relies on dated methodological and ideological presuppositions. The handbook aims to fill this gap by providing new readings of texts that figure prominently in the literature classroom and in scholarly debate, from James's The Ambassadors to McCarthy's The Road. These readings do not revert naively to a time before theory. Instead, they distill the insights of literary and cultural theory into concise introductions to the historical background, the themes, the formal strategies, and the reception of influential literary texts, and they do so in a jargon-free language accessible to readers on all levels of qualification. Reconsidering Flannery O'Connor Alison Arant, Jordan

Cofer, 2020-11-24 Contributions by Lindsay Alexander, Alison Arant, Alicia Matheny Beeson, Eric Bennett, Gina Caison, Jordan Cofer, Doug Davis, Doreen Fowler Marshall, Bruce Gentry, Bruce Henderson, Monica C. Miller, William Murray, Carol Shloss, Alison Staudinger, and Rachel Watson. The National Endowment for the Humanities has funded two Summer Institutes titled

Reconsidering Flannery O'Connor which invited scholars to rethink approaches to Flannery O'Connor's work. Drawing largely on research that started as part of the 2014 NEH Institute, this collection shares its title and its mission. Featuring fourteen new essays, Reconsidering Flannery O'Connor disrupts a few commonplace assumptions of O'Connor studies while also circling back to some old questions that are due for new attention. The volume opens with New Methodologies, which features theoretical approaches not typically associated with O'Connor's fiction in order to gain new insights into her work. The second section, New Contexts, stretches expectations on literary genre, on popular archetypes in her stories, and on how we should interpret her work. The third section, lovingly called Strange Bedfellows, puts O'Connor in dialogue with overlooked or neglected conversation partners, while the final section, O'Connor's Legacy, reconsiders her personal views on creative writing and her wishes regarding the handling of her estate upon death. With these final essays, the collection comes full circle, attesting to the hazards that come from overly relying on O'Connor's interpretation of her own work but also from ignoring her views and desires. Through these reconsiderations, some of which draw on previously unpublished archival material, the collection attests to and promotes the vitality of scholarship on Flannery O'Connor.

Flannery O'Connor and the Christ-Haunted South Ralph C. Wood, 2005-05-02 For those looking to deepen their appreciation of Flannery O'Connor, Wood shows how this literary icon's stories, novels, and essays impinge on America's cultural and ecclesial condition.

Flannery O'Connor and Robert Giroux Patrick Samway S.J., 2018-03-30 Flannery O'Connor is considered one of America's greatest fiction writers. The immensely talented Robert Giroux, editor in chief of Harcourt Brace, was her devoted friend and admirer. He edited her three books published during her lifetime plus Everything that Rises Must Converge, which she completed just before she died in 1964 at the age of thirty-nine. The posthumous The Complete Stories of Flannery O'Connor and the subsequent award-winning collection of her letters, titled The Habit of Being, when poet Robert Lowell first introduced O'Connor to Giroux in March 1949, she could not have imagined the impact that meeting would have on her life or on the landscape of postwar American literature.

Flannery O'Connor and Robert Giroux: A Publishing Partnership sheds new light on an area of Flannery O'Connor's life: her relationship with her editors that has not been well documented or narrated by critics and biographers. Impressively researched and rich in biographical details, this book chronicles Giroux's and O'Connor's personal and professional relationship, not omitting their circle of friends and fellow writers, including Robert Lowell, Caroline Gordon, Sally and Robert Fitzgerald, Allen Tate, Thomas Merton, and Robert Penn Warren. As Patrick Samway explains, Giroux guided O'Connor to become an internationally acclaimed writer of fiction and nonfiction, especially during the years when she suffered from lupus at her home in Milledgeville, Georgia, a disease that eventually proved fatal. Excerpts from their correspondence, some of which are published here for the first time, reveal how much of Giroux's work as editor was accomplished through his letters to Milledgeville. They are gracious, discerning, and appreciative just when they needed to be. In Father Samway's portrait of O'Connor as an extraordinarily dedicated writer and businesswoman, she emerges as savvy.

pragmatic focused and determined This engrossing account of O'Connor's publishing history will interest in addition to O'Connor's fans all readers and students of American literature Flannery O'Connor and Teilhard de Chardin Steven Robert Watkins, 2009 Flannery O'Connor the renowned short story writer lived and fought a tumultuous battle with lupus erythematosus most of her adult life In her last five years she sought insightful and helpful sources to alleviate her struggle with the disease Among these sources were the ideas and thoughts of a Jesuit paleontologist mystic by the name of Pierre Teilhard de Chardin an individual who opened doors of witness to the secular world and attracted suspicious questioning from his Catholic superiors Like a moth drawn to a flame Flannery O'Connor a devoted Thomist increasingly admired the ideas of Teilhard de Chardin to the point that she incorporated his ideas into her last six short stories in the collection Everything That Rises Must Converge This book adds significantly to the neglected study of Teilhard de Chardin's influence in the later literary development of Flannery O'Connor This book would be a valuable asset to students and scholars focusing on American literature Southern literature twentieth century Southern female writers and Flannery O'Connor The Incarnational Art of Flannery O'Connor Christina Bieber Lake, 2005 The Incarnational Art of Flannery O'Connor argues that O'Connor designed a unique aesthetic to defy the Gnostic dualisms that characterize American intellectual and spiritual life Focusing on stories with artist figures objects d'art child protagonists and embodied images Lake describes how O'Connor's fiction actively resisted romantic theories of the imagination and religious life by highlighting the epistemological necessity of the body Ultimately O'Connor challenges the romantic and modern notion of the artist as a fire stealing Prometheus and replaces it with a notion of the artist as a locally committed craftsman Drawing upon M.M. Bakhtin's early essays in Art and Answerability and Toward a Philosophy of the Act Lake illustrates O'Connor's conviction that art deliberately assigns the highest value of transcendental beauty to those beings least valued by the modern world and challenges us to do the same The book culminates with an original reading of Parker's Back that shows how in art as in life true knowledge comes to us through our own grotesque bodies and those of others Unafraid of the mystery of being human art can be the place where we encounter anew the world as more than what the intellect can unravel The Critical Reception of Flannery O'Connor, 1952-2017 Robert C. Evans, 2018 The first chronological overview of O'Connor criticism from the publication of her first novel Wise Blood in 1952 to the present A Jury of Her Peers Elaine Showalter, 2010-01-12 An unprecedented literary landmark the first comprehensive history of American women writers from 1650 to the present In a narrative of immense scope and fascination here are more than 250 female writers including the famous Harriet Beecher Stowe Dorothy Parker Flannery O'Connor and Toni Morrison among others and the little known from the early American bestselling novelist Catherine Sedgwick to the Pulitzer Prize winning playwright Susan Glaspell Showalter integrates women's contributions into our nation's literary heritage with brilliance and flair making the case for the unfairly overlooked and putting the overrated firmly in their place "Between the House and the Chicken Yard" Jolly Kay Sharp, 2011 Recognizing personal tendencies and developing literary talents enabled Mary Flannery O'Connor to don multiple masks concealing or revealing segments of herself as she desired. With no memoirs or lengthy autobiographies, O'Connor's published works, letters, manuscripts, along with previously unpublished letters, are examined to determine how O'Connor defined herself, not just how other scholars interpret her life and works. In fact, the plethora of criticism is in danger of obscuring the most important authority: O'Connor herself. Carl Jung claimed that adopted personas allow people ways to conform to society acceptably. While O'Connor's personal and social masks were affected by her Southern and Catholic roots, her vivid imagination and artistry fashioned her literary masks, allowing her to explore life's grotesqueness. Some of O'Connor's literary characters shelter self-defining features of her own personality and purpose. O'Connor's masks serve as metaphorical embodiments of her veiled autobiography, illuminating key components of her sense of self and of her literary power. Sharp's exploration of these society-obligatory and self-imposed masks identifies O'Connor's goals, struggles, and successes, her critical insight into her own literature, her reaction and responses to family, friends, and acquaintances, and ultimately her own success and growth.

Wingless Chickens, Bayou Catholics, and Pilgrim Wayfarers L. Lamar Nisly, 2011. Flannery O'Connor, Tim Gautreaux, and Walker Percy are all Catholic writers from the South and seem to embody very fully both parts of that label. Yet as quickly as becomes clear in their writing, their fiction employs markedly different tones and modes of addressing their audience. O'Connor seems intent on shocking her reader, whom she anticipates will be hostile to her deepest beliefs. Gautreaux gently and humorously engages his reader, inviting his expected sympathetic audience to embrace the characters' needed moral growth. Percy satirically lampoons an array of social ills and failings in the Church as he tries to get his audience laughing with him, while he makes his deadly serious point about the flaws he finds in the church and larger culture. Why do these three writers assume such divergent images of their audience? Why do texts by three writers who each embrace their Southern locale and their Catholic beliefs seem to have so little in common? To answer these questions, Nisly helps readers understand these authors' fiction by examining the role that place and time had in shaping each author's idea of an audience and, by extension, his or her manner of addressing that audience. More specifically, Nisly focuses on each author's experience of Catholic community and each author's placement in relation to the Second Vatican Council. Linking together biographical information and a reading of their fiction, Nisly argues that O'Connor's, Gautreaux's, and Percy's sense of audience has been shaped in significant ways by each author's own local experience of Catholicism in his or her home region, as well as the larger global changes of Vatican II that transformed Roman Catholicism.

Repression and Realism in Post-War American Literature E. Mercer, 2011-05-09. This study of fiction produced in America in the decade following 1945 examines literature by writers such as Kerouac and Bellow. It examines how, though such fiction seemed to resolutely avoid the events and implications of World War II, it was still suffused with dread and suggestions of war in imagery and language. Literature and Catholicism in the 19th and 20th Centuries David Torevell, 2021-03-05. This volume investigates how literary texts have reflected in ground breaking ways distinctive features of a Catholic philosophy of life It demonstrates how literature by its ability to capture the imagination is able to evoke facets of human experience related specifically to a Catholic understanding of life

Flannery O'Connor in the Age of Terrorism Avis Hewitt, 2010-07-28 In any age humans wrestle with apparently inexorable forces Today we face the threat of global terrorism In the aftermath of September 11 few could miss sensing that a great evil was at work in the world In Flannery O'Connor's time the threats came from different sources World War II the Cold War and the Korean conflict but they were just as real She too lived through a time of terror The first major critical volume on Flannery O'Connor's work in more than a decade Flannery O'Connor in the Age of Terrorism explores issues of violence evil and terror themes that were never far from O'Connor's reach and that seem particularly relevant to our present day setting The fifteen essays collected here offer a wide range of perspectives that explore our changing views of violence in a post 9/11 world and inform our understanding of a writer whose fiction abounds in violence Written by both established and emerging scholars the pieces that editors Avis Hewitt and Robert Donahoe have selected offer a compelling and varied picture of this iconic author and her work Included are comparisons of O'Connor to 1950s writers of noir literature and to the contemporary American novelist Cormac McCarthy cultural studies that draw on horror comics of the Cold War and on Fordism and the American mythos of the automobile and pieces that shed new light on O'Connor's complex religious sensibility and its role in her work While continuing to speak fresh truths about her own time O'Connor's fiction also resonates deeply with the postmodern sensibilities of audiences increasingly distant from her era readers absorbed in their own terrors and sense of looming ineffable threats This provocative new collection presents O'Connor's work as a touchstone for understanding where our culture has been and where we are now With its diverse approaches Flannery O'Connor in the Age of Terrorism will prove useful not only to scholars and students of literature but to anyone interested in history popular culture theology and reflective writing
