Seafarers' Rights in the Globalized Maritime Industry Desislava Nikolaeva Dimitrova, Roger Blanpain, 2010-01-01 The enormous technological financial and structural changes of recent decades have revolutionized the international shipping industry bringing about lower freight rates shorter time in port and fast turnarounds reduction in crew size employment of cheap labour from developing countries avoidance of national regulations and taxes and diminished living and working standards on board Exploitation of seafarers has always existed but now it has become more common and frequent Shipowners can cut costs in various ways but the most profitable and easiest to achieve are those at the expense of labour costs in particular costs for maintaining proper living conditions on board the ship This bulletin examines in detail the structure of the shipping industry focusing on problems concerning the working and living conditions of seafarers on board merchant ships serving the global sea transport system Exploring all levels of maritime policymaking on a global and European level the author analyses seafarers rights in the light of international enforcement mechanisms and particularly in the light of the recent ILO Maritime Labour Convention He also considers relevant case law as well as advisory opinions and policy statements from various pertinent agencies especially in the EU context Among the issues raised and discussed in depth in relation to their effect on seafarers labour standards are the following ship manning companies illicit crewing agencies flags of convenience hours of work and rest wages occupational health and safety accommodation food water and catering recreational facilities filing of grievance and port controls The author shows that expansion and progress of the maritime industry notwithstanding there is a great need for effective enforcement mechanisms in this area This is the first detailed analysis to connect the working and living conditions of seafarers with international supranational and national maritime legislation A giant step towards establishing a global monitoring system to enforce international maritime conventions regarding seafarers labour standards it is sure to make an important contribution to both international labour and employment law and the law of the sea

Pentsov, 2007-10-31 The importance of international maritime labour law both as a component of international maritime law and in socio political and economic terms has been recognised by the IMO International Maritime Law Institute for a number of years Indeed the Institute has annually organised a course on maritime labour law with the participation of inter alia the International Maritime Organization the International Labour Organization the International Transport Workers Federation and the German Shipowners Association It was therefore a great pleasure when the authors invited me to introduce their forthcoming monograph on Maritime Work Law Fundamentals Responsible Shipowners Reliable Seafarers As the title suggests a fundamental challenge of this branch of international maritime law is to achieve a balance between the interests of the two main stakeholders Institutionally the effort to achieve this balance dates back a number of decades with its genesis mainly found in the work of the International Labour Organization It has to be said that whilst this effort achieved great progress it has led to a haphazard plethora of legal instruments
