The Truth About Grief Ruth Davis Konigsberg, 2011-01-04 The five stages of grief are so deeply imbedded in our culture that no American can escape them Every time we experience loss a personal or national one we hear them recited denial anger bargaining depression and acceptance The stages are invoked to explain everything from how we will recover from the death of a loved one to a sudden environmental catastrophe or to the trading away of a basketball star But the stunning fact is that there is no validity to the stages that were proposed by psychiatrist Elisabeth Kubler-Ross more than forty years ago In The Truth About Grief Ruth Davis Konigsberg shows how the five stages were based on no science but nonetheless became national myth She explains that current research paints a completely different picture of how we actually grieve It turns out people are pretty well programmed to get over loss Grieving should not be a strictly regimented process she argues nor is the best remedy for pain always to examine it or express it at great length The strength of Konigsberg's message is its liberating force there is no manual to grieving you can do it freestyle In the course of clarifying our picture of grief Konigsberg tells its history revealing how social and cultural forces have shaped our approach to loss from the Gettysburg Address through 9/11 She examines how the American version of grief has spread to the rest of the world and contrasts it with the interpretations of other cultures like the Chinese who focus more on their bond with the deceased than on the emotional impact of bereavement Konigsberg also offers a close look at Kubler-Ross herself who she borrowed from to come up with her theory and how she went from being a pioneering psychiatrist to a New Age healer who sought the guidance of two spirits named Salem and Pedro and declared that death did not exist Deeply researched and provocative The Truth About Grief draws on history culture and science to upend our country's most entrenched beliefs about its most common experience

The Meaning of Mourning Mikolaj Slawkowski-Rode, 2023-01-09 Grief is a universal human response to death and loss Mourning is an equally universally observable practice that enables the bereaved to express their grief and come to terms with the reality of loss Yet despite their prevalence there is no unified understanding of the nature and meaning of grief and mourning The Meaning of Mourning Perspectives on Death Loss and Grief brings together fifteen essays from diverse disciplines addressing the topics of death grief and mourning The collection moves from general questions concerning the putative badness of death and the meaning of loss through the phenomenology and psychology of grief to personal and cultural aspects of mourning Contributors examine topics such as theodicy and grief reproductive loss mourning as a form of recognition of value the roots of grief in early childhood grief in COVID times hope phenomenology of loss public commemoration and mourning rituals mourning for a devastated culture the Necropolis of Glasgow and the art of outliving Edited by Mikolaj Slawkowski Rode the volume provides a survey of the rich topography of methodologies problems approaches and disciplines that are involved in the study of issues surrounding loss and our responses to it and guides the reader through a spectrum of perspectives highlighting the connections and discontinuities between them Loss, Change And Bereavement In Palliative Care Firth, Pam, Luff, Gill, Oliviere, David, 2004-12-01 This text brings together contemporary thinking on loss and bereavement It draws on international research practice and individual stories from people struggling to understand the meaning of loss including work with bereaved children parents families and adults

Working with Loss and Grief Linda Machin, 2008-12-01 In a book that is replete with illustrative case studies Linda Machin draws together the findings of a wide range of psychological and sociological theory and research in order to develop a way of thinking about grief and loss that is intelligible to ordinary mortals Her Adult Attitude to Grief scale promises to be a useful tool by which problems can be identified and progress monitored Colin Murray Parkes Honorary Consultant Psychiatrist to St Christopher's Hospice Loss is a universal human experience Supporting those who are grieving a significant life loss is a key role for many professionals in health and social care settings and is the focus in many voluntary organisations Although there is an extensive literature on loss and bereavement practitioners often struggle to see how to put theory into practice Working with Loss and Grief provides a new model which makes clear connections between theory and practice The Range of Response to Loss model provides a theoretical compass for recognising the wide variability in reaction to loss and the Adult Attitude to Grief scale is a tool for mapping individual grief and its change over time providing an individual grief profile Together these offer a framework for practitioners to Listen to stories of grief told by clients Identify common patterns in grief Recognize individual difference in grief response Assess the need for therapeutic intervention or support Prompt therapeutic dialogue Guide therapeutic focus Appraise clients Evaluate outcomes Case examples show that the experience of grief is highly individual but also capable of being understood in terms of general concepts As such it is a valuable resource not only for practitioners and trainees in counselling and social work but also for psychologists doctors nurses and for researchers studying loss and grief Dr Linda Machin is a Visiting Research Fellow of Keele University having been a Lecturer in Social Work and Counselling at Keele She established a counselling service for the bereaved in North Staffordshire and continues to work as a researcher a hospice counsellor and a freelance trainer
