Portraits With Backgrounds American Autobiography:

Portraits with Backgrounds Catherine Barjansky, 2013-03-01 Bonded Leather binding Mediating American Autobiography Sean Ross Meehan, 2008

The emergence of photography in the mid nineteenth century transformed ideas about how the self and nature could be pictured. Although the autobiographical potential of photography seems self evident today Sean Meehan takes us back to the birth of the medium when some of America's preeminent authors began to think about photography's implications for the representation of identity and the nature of autobiographical writing. Both photography and autobiography involve a tension between disclosing and concealing their means of production a chemical process for one the writing process for the other. Meehan examines how four major authors Ralph Waldo Emerson Henry David Thoreau Frederick Douglass and Walt Whitman were well aware of this tension and explored it in their work. By examining the implications of early photography in their writings he shows how each engaged the new visual medium how photography mediated their conceptions of self representation and how their appropriation of photographic thinking created a new kind of autobiography. Examining the metonymic nature of photography Meehan explores how the new medium influenced conceptions of visual and verbal representation. He intertwines these four writers' reflections on photography in Emerson's Representative Men Thoreau's journals Douglass's narratives of slavery and Whitman's Specimen Days with theories of photography as expounded by its inventors and observers from Louis Daguerre and William Talbot in Europe to Oliver Wendell Holmes and Marcus Root in America. As the first book to focus on the emergence of this new visual medium during the American Renaissance Mediating American Autobiography shows us what photography means for American literature in general and for the genre most closely linked to it in particular. Because the engagement of these writers with photography has been neglected in previous scholarship Meehan's work provocatively bridges the study of two media and illuminates an important aspect of American thought and culture at the dawn of the technological era.

American Autobiography Paul John Eakin, 1991

The first four essays review the major historical periods of American autobiography placing the classic texts of American autobiographical literature from Captain John Smith to Malcolm X in the illuminating context of lesser known contemporary narratives. Daniel B. Shea writes on colonial America Lawrence Buell on the American Renaissance Susanna Egan on the years after the Civil War and Albert E. Stone on the twentieth century. The second part of American Autobiography shows the diversity of voices forms audiences and modes of identity in the literature of American autobiography. Provocative essays by William Boelhower and Sau Ling Cynthia Wong on immigrant autobiography discuss the changes in the sense of self that occur when strangers come to a strange land. Arnold Krupat writes about how American Indians conceptualize the self and about the relationship between oral and written discourse. William L. Andrews evaluates the strong body of critical theory that has grown up around African American autobiography showing how both the genre and its criticism have responded to contemporary historical pressures. Carol Holly explores the model of personal identity that underlies nineteenth century women s autobiographies and Blanche Gelfant examines the narrative and political strategies of Emma Goldman s autobiography especially her use of popular romance and melodrama The last essay offers a more personal perspective on contemporary autobiography a dialogue between Robert and Jane Coles about how they developed their method of eliciting first person oral narratives for their famous Children of Crisis and Women of Crisis series These essays raise theoretical issues that are examined in Paul John Eakin s incisive introduction How do we define a literary genre of protean shape and perplexing cultural multiplicity How do we approach the special problems created by documents that are both historical and literary texts ones that pose difficult questions about truth and representation Most important how is the canon of American autobiography to be constructed and how is its history to be written Tracing that critical history Eakin explains how changing ideas about the mainstream and the marginal have revitalized our retrospective view of American autobiography and opened up new and exciting prospects for today s reader American Autobiography, 1945-1980

autobiographers are unreliable narrators Yet what a writer chooses to misrepresent is as telling perhaps even more so as what really happened Timothy Adams believes that autobiography is an attempt to reconcile one s life with one s self and he argues in this book that autobiography should not be taken as historically accurate but as metaphorically authentic Adams focuses on five modern American writers whose autobiographies are particularly complex because of apparent lies that permeate them In examining their stories Adams shows that lying in autobiography especially literary autobiography is not simply inevitable Rather it is often a deliberate highly strategic decision on the author s part Throughout his analysis Adams s standard is not literal accuracy but personal authenticity He attempts to resolve some of the paradoxes of recent autobiographical theory by looking at the classic question of design and truth in autobiography from the underside with a focus on lying rather than truth Originally published in 1990 A UNC Press Enduring Edition UNC Press Enduring Editions use the latest in digital technology to make available again books from our distinguished backlist that were previously out of print These editions are published unaltered from the original and are presented in affordable paperback formats bringing readers both historical and cultural value Catalog, 1903 Indiana State Library,1905 The Cyclopedia of American Biography James Edward Homans,Herbert M.
