Lincoln Postcard Catalog James L. Lowe, 1973 The First Blitz in 100 Objects Ian Castle, 2020-05-19 A visual history of this forgotten WWI bombing campaign A fantastic book Remnants of stained glass windows grocery shop scales and so much more War History Online The First World War ushered in many new and increasingly deadly weapons and strategies none more so than Germany's sustained aerial bombing campaign against Britain which opened an entirely new theatre of war the Home Front It was a shocking awakening to twentieth century warfare for the military and civilians alike There are still fascinating glimpses of this first air campaign long overshadowed by the Blitz of World War II to be found in the streets of British towns and cities Often unnoticed each tells its own dramatic tale of death and destruction or maybe of heroism and narrow escapes Museums hold tantalizing reminders of the air raids from complete aircraft that defended the country to relics of great Zeppelins that initially brought terror to the British population but ultimately were doomed to become nothing more than great heaps of burnt and twisted wreckage This first time assault from the air both terrified and fascinated citizens and unexpectedly a significant trade in air raid souvenirs developed from postcards of wrecked houses and bomb craters to china models of Zeppelins and their bombs and pieces of Zeppelin wreckage And among the 100 Objects brought together in this book there can also be found tales of resilience humor and determination which all have their place in the story of this First Blitz

for us now It provides a visual history of the future and explores the relationships between different visualisation techniques and ideologies for cities Thinking about what futures are who they are for why they are desirable and how and when they are to be brought into being is central to this book Through visualisation we are able to experiment in ways that would be impractical and potentially hazardous in the real world and this book therefore aims to contribute toward a better understanding of the power and agency of visualisations for future cities In this lavishly illustrated text the authors apply several critical lenses to consider the subject in different ways technological futures social futures and global futures providing a comprehensive survey and analysis of visions for future cities and engaging creatively with how we perceive tomorrow s world and future studies more widely
