Postcards from France Gai Reid, 2015-05-12 Postcards from France is a story of how the sensual powers of this essentially feminine country healed a profound loss of love identity and place Seeking peace and joy after the death of the two most significant people in her life the author returns to France a place where she feels an inexplicable sense of belonging Here I become the person who lives inside my skin not the person who lives inside my house and inhabits my job Stories of French experiences move through the ages taking you from the sublime to the repugnant the humorous to the poignant Madame Paris sits proud and sanguine with her Mona Lisa smile hinting at her knowledge of what has happened throughout the centuries without judgment without sentiment She glances at her cobblestone streets that once ran with blood as she gestures to her elegant opulence She flips through the dissent and the creativity with no discernable preference and mingles all that she has been and seen into an infallible sense of self You will travel to some of the most enthralling villages in Provence the best of Normandy Brittany the regal Loire Valley and the incomparable Paris as the author digs into the history of new and familiar parts of France for colour context and meaning then sends it home on postcards to herself Salut I am sitting in history in the sun flecked shade of a plane tree that could have been planted when Mozart was learning to play piano or when Marie Antoinette was attempting to figure out her bewildering husband and king of France Louis XVI Remember this moment Je suis tr's content With love me

Postcards from the Front 1914-1919 Kate J. Cole, 2016-05-15 Postcards from the Front 1914-1919 captures the essence of this medium in a unique and fascinating way bringing to life the pathos the trauma and the mud and the blood of Flanders and France as the embattled Tommies wrote home to their loved ones The London Philatelist, 1892 Postcards from the Trenches Irene Guenther, 2018-11-01

German art student Otto Schubert was 22 years old when he was drafted into the Great War As the conflict unfolded he painted a series of postcards that he sent to his sweetheart Irma During the battles of Ypres and Verdun Schubert filled dozens of military issued 4 x 6 cards with vivid images depicting the daily realities and tragedies of war Beautifully illustrated with full color reproductions of his exquisite postcards as well as his wartime sketches woodcuts and two lithograph portfolios Postcards from the Trenches is Schubert's war diary love journal and life story His powerful artworks illuminate and document in a visual language the truths of war Postcards from the Trenches offers the first full account of Otto Schubert soldier artist of the Great War rising art star in the 1920s prolific graphic artist and book illustrator one of the degenerate artists defamed by the Nazis and a man shattered by the Second World War and the Cold War Created in the midst of enormous devastation Schubert's haunting visual missives are as powerful and relevant today as they were a century ago His postcards are both a young man's token of love and longing and a soldier's testimony of the Great War French History, 18?? France at War World War 1, 2011-09-20 My grandfather's collection of postcards from France during WW1 Letters, Postcards, Email Esther Milne, 2012-02-27 In this original study Milne moves between close readings of letters postcards and emails and investigations of the material technological infrastructures of these forms to answer the question How does presence function as an aesthetic and rhetorical strategy within networked communication practices As her work reveals the relation between old and new communication systems is more complex than allowed in much contemporary media theory Although the correspondents of letters postcards and emails are not usually present to one another as they write and read their exchanges this does not necessarily inhibit affective communication Indeed this study demonstrates how physical absence may in some instances provide correspondents with intense intimacy and a spiritual almost telepathic sense of the other's presence While corresponding by letter postcard or email readers construe an imaginary incorporeal body for their correspondents that in turn reworks their interlocutor's self presentation In this regard the fantasy of presence reveals a key paradox of cultural communication namely that material signifiers can be used to produce the experience of incorporeal presence France and "Indochina" Kathryn Robson, Jennifer Yee, 2005-01-01 At the intersection of literary cultural and postcolonial studies this volume looks at French perceptions of Indochina as they are conveyed through a variety of media including cinema literature art and historical or anthropological writings The volume is long awaited as France's memory of Indochina is understudied compared to its relationship with its former colonies in West and North Africa The book has contemporary urgency as the makeup of France's immigrant population changes and grows to include Vietnamese Cambodian and Laotian populations British Postcards of the First World War Peter Doyle, 2011-11-20 Postcards sent by men on the front and to them by their families are among the most numerous and most telling surviving artefacts of the Great War They tell us much about attitudes towards the war and provide a great insight into men's lives and into the thoughts and emotions of those left behind Very different in their illustration and in their writing between the beginning of the war and the end postcards provide a social history of the war in microcosm Illustrated with a wide range of postcards this is a fascinating look into the response of the British people to the horrors of the war Tahiti Beyond the Postcard Miriam Kahn, 2011-07-01 Winner of the 2013 ICAS Book Prize Social Sciences The Tahiti that most people imagine white sand beaches turquoise lagoons and beautiful women is a product of 18th century European romanticism and persists today as the bedrock of Tahiti's tourism industry This postcard image however masks a different reality The dreams and desires that the tourism industry promotes distract from the medical nightmares and environmental destruction caused by France's 30 year nuclear testing program in French Polynesia Tahitians see the burying of a bomb in their land as deeply offensive For Tahitians the land abounds with ancestral fertility and genealogical identity and is a source of physical and spiritual nourishment These imagined and lived perspectives seem incompatible yet are intricately intertwined in the political economy Tahiti Beyond the Postcard engages with questions about the subtle but ubiquitous ways in which power entangles itself in place related ways Miriam Kahn uses interpretive frameworks of both Tahitian and European scholars drawing upon ethnographic details that include ancient chants picture postcards antinuclear protests popular song lyrics and the legacy of Paul Gauguin s art to provide fresh perspectives on colonialism tourism imagery and the anthropology of place
