Reviews of National Science and Technology Policy Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, 1986

This description and evaluation of Australia's science and technology policy recommends a number of measures including tax based incentives for research and development as ways in which policies could be made more effective. The report also stresses the importance of education and training for Australia to fulfil its scientific and technological potential. ISNAR

Agricultural Research Indicator Series Philip G. Pardey, Johannes Roseboom, 2004-01-05 Fully sourced country specific files on the basic resources committed to national agricultural research systems for 154 developing and developed countries

The Poor Relation Stuart Macintyre, 2010 What are the social sciences? What do they do? How are they practised in Australia? The Poor Relation examines the place of the social sciences from economics and psychology to history, law and philosophy in the teaching and research conducted by Australian universities. Across sixty years, The Poor Relation charts the changing circumstances of the social sciences and measures their contribution to public policy. In doing so, it also relates the arrangements made to support them and explains why they are so persistently treated as the poor relation of science and technology. Environment, Education and Society in the Asia-Pacific John Fien, Helen Sykes, David Yencken, 2003-09-02

This important book explores the interaction of global environmental discourses and local traditions and practices in twelve countries in the Asia Pacific region. Based upon two parallel groups of studies reviewing cultural influences in individual countries and the attitudes of young people across the region, it has important implications for environmental policy and education. National Innovation Systems Richard R. Nelson, 1993-06-03 The slowdown of growth in Western industrialized nations in the last twenty years, along with the rise of Japan as a major economic and technological power and enhanced technical sophistication of Taiwan, Korea and other NICs, has led to what the authors believe to be a techno-nationalism. This combines a strong belief that technological capabilities of a nation's firms are a key source of their competitive process, with a belief that these capabilities are, in a sense, national and can be built by national action. This book is about these national systems of technical innovation. The heart of the work contains studies of seventeen countries, from large market oriented industrialized ones to several smaller high income ones, including a number of newly industrialized states as well. Clearly written, this work highlights institutions and mechanisms which support technical innovation, showing similarities, differences and their sources across nations, making this work accessible to students as well as the scholars of innovation. Science, the State, and International Society Martha Finnemore, 1991 OECD Food and Agricultural Reviews Innovation,

Agricultural Productivity and Sustainability in Australia OECD, 2015-08-04 Australia's agriculture and food industries are well placed to contribute to the economy's future growth, given the robust prospects of global food demand and the continuing high international competitiveness of these sectors. OECD Reviews of Innovation Policy China Synthesis Report
