Revolutionary Diplomacy J. D. Armstrong, 2024-06-21 From the Introduction The principal question that is posed in this study is what has been the influence of Mao's united front doctrine on China's foreign policy A related but secondary question is also considered In what ways if any has China's participation in the international system caused Peking to revise its conception of a united front in world politics Insofar as Mao's thoughts about united fronts are part of the total array of theories and operational principles that make up the Chinese communist ideology this essay considers one aspect of the relationship between ideology and foreign policy Since this question has long been the subject of a mostly inconclusive and often circular academic debate Armstrong states his reasons for returning to it here The first is that the problem is no less important because it admits of no easy solution Indeed with the breakdown in the twentieth century of even the limited consensus over norms and values that permitted a great power concert to exist for part of the nineteenth the question is clearly one of major significance in contemporary international relations Since China has become in many ways a symbol of the postwar ideological challenge to the established order in world politics the question is particularly relevant in a study of China's foreign policy Finally by combining a strictly limited focus of enquiry with a systematic approach to the problem it may be possible to overcome some of the analytical difficulties that surround the larger issue of the relation of ideas to social practice This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 Voices Revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology This title was originally published in 1977 Revolutionary Diplomacy. Houman A. Sadri, 1997-04-16 This book compares and contrasts the foreign relations strategies of China Cuba and Iran in the first decade of their post revolutionary periods Among a variety of explanatory variables leadership particularly the type of revolutionary leaders played a significant role in explaining the outcome of the policymaking process in each case Three distinct patterns of foreign relations strategies are evident among all three revolutionary regimes in the ten year period Two Track Conflictual and Conciliatory This book is a valuable source for both experts and non experts alike in providing insight into the foreign relations of revolutionary regimes in developing countries and in helping U S policymakers anticipate behaviors of future revolutionary leaders A focal point of this book is the examination of the nonalignment strategies of these prominent developing countries during the infancy of their regimes Each state's particular strategy is described and explained in detail and then contrasted and compared Although there are differences among their foreign policies considering their geographic locations size wealth military capabilities leadership characteristics and political institutions there are significant similarities regarding their foreign policy goals and trends in their foreign relations with the Great Powers Among explanatory factors leadership played a significant role in the policy making process although the foreign relations strategies of these revolutionary regimes were fed by a combination of national and international variables In all three states the tone of foreign policy was set by revolutionary leaders who were either idealists or realists Idealists tended to take a more active and conflictual approach toward one or both of the superpowers while Realists were more cautious and less willing to resort to a conflictual posture This book also investigates the gap between the theoretical and practical nonalignment stance of each state This cross regional study provides policy analysts with clues about the foreign policies of other revolutionary developing countries in similar situations Finally it makes suggestions about how a Great Power may relate to a developing country during its first post revolution decade

This book shows how China has leveraged this power from a neorealist perspective projecting military and economic power to advance Chinese interests. China and Southeast Asia Gungwu Wang, 1999. All this is not surprising even understandable. But the danger of exaggeration to the point where efforts to predict what China and the Chinese will do become merely alarmist and the predictions become self-fulfilling has to be guarded against.

Mao's China and the Cold War Jian Chen, 2010-03-15. This comprehensive study of China's Cold War experience reveals the crucial role Beijing played in shaping the orientation of the global Cold War and the confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union. The success of China's Communist revolution in 1949 set the stage. Chen says: "The Korean War, the Taiwan Strait crises and the Vietnam War, all of which involved China as a central actor, represented the only major hot conflicts during the Cold War period, making East Asia the main battlefield of the Cold War while creating conditions to prevent the two superpowers from engaging in a direct military showdown. Beijing's split with Moscow and rapprochement with Washington fundamentally transformed the international balance of power, argues Chen, eventually leading to the end of the Cold War with the collapse of the Soviet Empire and the decline of international communism Based on sources that include recently declassified Chinese documents the book offers pathbreaking insights into the course and outcome of the Cold War Mental Maps in the Early Cold War Era, 1945-68 S.
