The Cranes Curt Meine, George Archibald, 1996 The Cranes are among the most ancient and distinctive families of birds on Earth yet they are among the world's most threatened groups of birds This Action Plan describes the many different sorts of threats facing cranes especially as they migrate through different countries and the many solutions that have been attempted to overcome them It is intended for all those involved in crane conservation including conservation biologists conservation organizations other non governmental organizations inter national development agencies political civic and business leaders funding agencies and foundations educators and members of the general public Management of Migratory Shore and Upland Game Birds in North America Glen C. Sanderson, 1977 Sandhill Crane Study in the Central Flyway Raymond J. Buller, 1967 Fall migrating sandhill cranes arrived at congregation sites in southern Canada and in the States of the Central Flyway between late July and early October Sandhills peaked at about 100 000 birds at way stations during the fall of 1964 Footprint measurements indicated that the lesser sandhill was by far the most numerous subspecies at way stations in Montana North Dakota South Dakota and Colorado These measurements also indicated that flocks stopping over in Wyoming Kansas and Oklahoma contained a significant number of Canadian sandhill or greater sandhill or both A selective collecting program indicated that the footprint measurement technique overemphasized the incidence of the greater sandhill at way stations in North Dakota and South Dakota Whooping cranes and sandhills were occasionally observed together during the early part of the fall migration At times fall migrating sandhills fed on standing and harvested grain crops in Canada and the States of the Central Flyway but seldom were depredations considered serious Hearings, Reports and Prints of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries United States.
