The Unicorn, 1917 Making the Majors Eric Leifer, 2009-06-01 In this in depth look at major league sports Eric Leifer traces the growth and development of major leagues in baseball football basketball and hockey and predicts fundamental changes as the majors pursue international expansion He shows how every past expansion of sports publics has been accompanied by significant changes in the way sporting competition is organized With each reorganization the majors have created teams closer in ability bringing repetition to competition across time only to expand and energize the public s search for differences between teams and for events that disrupt the repetitive flow The phenomenal success of league sports Leifer writes rests on their ability to manufacture inequalities for fans to latch on to without jeopardizing the equalities that draw fans in Leifer supports his theory with historical detail and statistical analysis He examines the special concerns of league organizers in pursuing competitive balance and presents a detailed analysis of how large city domination has been undermined in the modern era of Major League Baseball Using games from the four major league sports he then shows how fans can themselves affect the course of competition In NFL football for example fans account for nearly all of the persisting inequality in team performance The possibility of sustaining inequality among equals emerges from the cross pressures that fans and leagues place on competition With substantial data in hand Leifer asks the essential question facing the leagues today how can they sustain a situation that depends entirely on simultaneous equality and contention one in which fan involvement may evaporate as soon as one team dominates His answer has significant implications for the future of major league sports both nationally and internationally

Sport, Migration, and Gender in the Neoliberal Age Niko

Besnier, Domenica Gisella Calabrò, Daniel Guinness, 2020-10-25 This ethnographic collection explores how neoliberalism has permeated the bodies subjectivities and gender of youth around the world as global sport industries have expanded their reach into marginal areas luring young athletes with the dream of pursuing athletic careers in professional leagues of the Global North Neoliberalism has reconfigured sport since the 1980s as sport clubs and federations have become for profit businesses in conjunction with television and corporate sponsors Neoliberal sport has had other important effects which are rarely the object of attention as the national economies of the Global South and local economies of marginal areas of the Global North have collapsed under pressure from global capital many young people dream of pursuing a sport career as an escape from poverty But this elusive future is often located elsewhere initially in regional centres though ultimately in the wealthy centres of the Global North that can support a sport infrastructure The pursuit of this future has transformed kinship relations gender relations and the subjectivities of people This collection of rich ethnographies from diverse regions of the world from Ghana to Finland and from China to Fiji pulls the reader into the lives of men and women in the global sport industries including aspiring athletes their families and the agents coaches and academy directors shaping athletes dreams It demonstrates that the ideals of neoliberalism spread in surprising ways intermingling with categories like gender religion indigeneity and kinship Athletes migrations provide a novel angle on the global workings of neoliberalism This book will be of key interest to scholars in Gender Studies Anthropology Sport Studies and Migration Studies Congressional Record United States.
