Schooling the System Funké Aladejebi, 2021-03-05 In post World War II Canada black women's positions within the teaching profession served as sites of struggle and conflict as the nation worked to address the needs of its diversifying population. From their entry into teachers' college through their careers in the classroom and administration, black women educators encountered systemic racism and gender barriers at every step. So they worked to change the system. Using oral narratives to tell the story of black access and education in Ontario between the 1940s and the 1980s, Schooling the System provides textured insight into how issues of race, gender, class, geographic origin, and training shaped women's distinct experiences within the profession. By valuing women's voices and lived experiences, Funké Aladejebi illustrates that black women as a diverse group made vital contributions to the creation and development of anti-racist education in Canada. As cultural mediators within Ontario school systems, these women circumvented subtle and overt forms of racial and social exclusion to create resistive teaching methods that centred black knowledges and traditions. Within their wider communities and activist circles, they fought to change entrenched ideas about what Canadian citizenship should look like. As schools continue to grapple with creating diverse educational programs for all Canadians, Schooling the System is a timely excavation of the meaningful contributions of black women educators who helped create equitable policies and practices in schools and communities.

Making a Difference in Urban Schools Jane Gaskell, Benjamin Levin, 2012-08-08 What can be done to improve the educational experiences of students who live in cities with increasingly high levels of diversity and inequality? Making a Difference in Urban Schools evaluates how school and community leaders have worked to change urban education in Canada for the better over the past fifty years. This analytic and comparative study traces the evolution of urban education in Toronto and Winnipeg from the 1960s onward. Jane Gaskell and Ben Levin identify important contrasts between the experiences in each city as a result of their different demographics, institutional structures, cultures, and politics. They also highlight the common issues and dilemmas faced by reformers in these two cities across Canada and globally, including many that persist and remain controversial to this day.

New Books on Women and Feminism, 2005 Feminist Periodicals, 2006 Journal of the Royal Australian Historical Society, 2005 Includes the Society's Annual report and statement of accounts.

Journal of the Association for Research on Mothering, 2005 A Lot to Learn Helen Lenskyj, 2005 Using sources from women's history, women's studies, and critical social theory, Dr. Lenskyj situates two stories: her own and that of her mother within the broader Australian socio-cultural context of the period from 1900 to 1960. She presents the background for her mother's narrative beginning in 1832 when her grandfather arrived in Sydney Australia as a convict. She then examines her own experience as a working class child attending a private school in the 1950s. Moving to Toronto the story continues by documenting the interventions of mothers involved in school community activism in the 1960s and 1970s. Reflecting on her experiences since 1986 as an openly lesbian professor at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education University of Toronto, Dr. Lenskyj includes a critical analysis of lesbian and gay activism aimed at educational change and of developments in feminist pedagogy in the last two decades.
