Los Precios Del Trigo En La Historia Colonial De Mxico:

Los precios del trigo en la historia colonial de México Virginia García Acosta, 1988 Hacienda and Market in Eighteenth-Century Mexico Eric Van Young, 2006-06-01 This classic history of the Mexican hacienda from the colonial period through the nineteenth century has been reissued in a silver anniversary edition complete with a substantive new introduction and foreword Eric Van Young explores 150 years of Mexico's economic and rural development a period when one of history's great empires was trying to extract more resources from its most important colony and when an arguably capitalist economy was both expanding and taking deeper root The author explains the development of a regional agrarian system centered on the landed estates of late colonial Mexico the central economic and social institution of an overwhelmingly rural society With rich empirical detail he meticulously describes the features of the rural economy including patterns of land ownership credit and investment labor relations the structure of production and the relationship of a major colonial city to its surrounding area The book's most interesting and innovative element is its emphasis on the way the system of rural economy shaped and was shaped by the internal logic of a great spatial system the region of Guadalajara Van Young argues that Guadalajara's population growth progressively integrated the large geographical region surrounding the city through the mechanisms of the urban market for grain and meat which in turn put pressure on local land and labor resources Eventually this drove white and Indian landowners into increasingly sharp conflict and led to the progressive proletarianization of the region's peasantry during the last decades of the Spanish colonial era It is no accident given this history that the Guadalajara region was one of the major areas of armed insurrection for most of the decade during Mexico's struggle for independence from Spain By highlighting the way haciendas worked and changed over time this indispensable study illuminates Mexico's economic and social history the movement for independence and the origins of the Mexican Revolution

Colonial Cataclysms Bradley Skopyk, 2020-04-14 The contiguous river basins that flowed in Tlaxcala and San Juan Teotihuacan formed part of the agricultural heart of central Mexico As the colonial project rose to a crescendo in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries the Indigenous farmers of central Mexico faced long term problems standard historical treatments had attributed to drought and soil degradation set off by Old World agriculture Instead Bradley Skopyk argues that a global climate event called the Little Ice Age brought cold temperatures and elevated rainfall to the watersheds of Tlaxcala and Teotihuacan With the climatic shift came cataclysmic changes great floods human adaptations to these deluges and then silted wetlands and massive soil erosion This book chases water and soil across the colonial Mexican landscape through the fields and towns of New Spain's Native subjects and in and out of some of the strongest climate anomalies of the last thousand or more years The pursuit identifies and explains the making of two unique ecological crises the product of the interplay between climatic and anthropogenic processes It charts how Native farmers responded to the challenges posed by these ecological rifts with creative use of plants and animals from the Old and New Worlds environmental engineering and conflict within and beyond the courts With a new reading of the colonial climate and by paying close attention to land water and agrarian ecologies forged by farmers Skopyk argues that colonial cataclysms forged during a critical conjuncture of truly unprecedented proportions a crucible of human and natural forces unhinged the customary ways in which humans organized thought about and used the Mexican environment This book inserts climate earth water and ecology as significant forces shaping colonial affairs and challenges us to rethink both the environmental consequences of Spanish imperialism and the role of Indigenous peoples in shaping them La distinción alimentaria de Toluca María del Carmen León García,2002
