great wave of fundraising patriotic associations followed in the wake of Great Britain's declaration of war on Germany on 4 August 1914 at home but also right across the empire. The most successful public campaign of all was launched in London at the beginning of 1915. Known as the Imperial Aircraft Flotilla, the scheme aimed to attract contributions towards aircraft production costs from throughout the British Empire. Any country, locality or community that provided sufficient funds for an entire aeroplane could have it named after them. It was promised that when the machine crashed or was shot down, the name would be transferred to a new one of the same type. Margaret Hall examines the Imperial Aircraft Flotilla as a facet of imperial history. She analyzes the fundraising efforts in Canada and Newfoundland, the Zanzibar Protectorate, Fiji, Mauritius and the Caribbean, Hong Kong, the Malay states and Straits Settlements, West Africa, especially Gold Coast, Southern Rhodesia, Basutoland, Swaziland and the Union of South Africa, the Indian empire and Burma, British subjects in independent Abyssinia and Siam, in the Shanghai International Settlement and the British community of Argentina, Australia and New Zealand. This remarkable and detailed book discusses the propaganda and counter-subversion usages of the Imperial Aircraft Flotilla and what the support for the imperial war effort reveals about contemporary national and regional identities and aspirations.

Private Correspondence Cuthbert Collingwood, Baron Collingwood, 1957. The Private Correspondence of Admiral Lord Collingwood Collingwood (Admiral Lord.), 1947. The Private Correspondence of Admiral Lord Collingwood. Edited by Edward Hughes. [With a portrait.] Cuthbert COLLINGWOOD (Baron Collingwood.), 1957. The Private Correspondence of Admiral Lord Collingwood Edward Hughes, 2019-04-29. This volume attempts to rescue Nelson's second in command at Trafalgar from the comparative obscurity that had overtaken him.

since the close of the nineteenth century Vice Admiral Lord Collingwood 1748 1810 lionised for his role at Trafalgar by his contemporaries and by Victorians had become widely viewed in the first half of the twentieth century as a naval mediocrity. The contents are Collingwood's correspondence 1776 1810 mainly from private collections and do not include any of his official correspondence which can be found at the National Maritime Museum. Thus in this volume there are no broad comprehensive accounts of Trafalgar though there are related snippets of professional and human interest not least regarding the sense of injustice felt by the officers of the ships that had not returned home after the battle but stayed on in the Mediterranean and feared themselves forgotten by the Admiralty in the bestowal of rewards. Clearly glimpsed is Collingwood's own frustration with an Admiralty that despite his repeated protestations of ill health steadfastly refused to relieve him from the Mediterranean command. There are letters to his relations that provide vivid accounts of the Glorious First of June and the battle of Cape St Vincent letters of a domestic and revealingly personal nature and incidental letters to other recipients including Rear Admirals Sir Thomas Louis and Sir Thomas Pasley and Captain Benjamin Hallowell. Inward correspondence consisting of letters 1808 10 from the Duke of Northumberland forms an appendix.
