Wastelanding Traci Brynne Voyles, 2015-05-15 Wastelanding tells the history of the uranium industry on Navajo land in the U S Southwest asking why certain landscapes and the peoples who inhabit them come to be targeted for disproportionate exposure to environmental harm Uranium mines and mills on the Navajo Nation land have long supplied U S nuclear weapons and energy programs By 1942 mines on the reservation were the main source of uranium for the top secret Manhattan Project Today the Navajo Nation is home to more than a thousand abandoned uranium sites Radiation related diseases are endemic claiming the health and lives of former miners and nonminers alike Traci Brynne Voyles argues that the presence of uranium mining on Din Navajo land constitutes a clear case of environmental racism Looking at discursive constructions of landscapes she explores how environmental racism develops over time For Voyles the wasteland where toxic materials are excavated exploited and dumped is both a racial and a spatial signifier that renders an environment and the bodies that inhabit it pollutable Because environmental inequality is inherent in the way industrialism operates the wasteland is the other through which modern industrialism is established In examining the history of wastelanding in Navajo country Voyles provides an environmental justice history of uranium mining revealing how just as civilization has been defined on and through savagery environmental privilege is produced by portraying other landscapes as marginal worthless and pollutable

Seattle in Coalition

Diana K. Johnson, 2023-02-14 In the fall of 1999 the World Trade Organization WTO prepared to hold its biennial Ministerial Conference in Seattle The event culminated in five days of chaotic political protest that would later be known as the Battle in Seattle The convergence represented the pinnacle of decades of organizing among workers of color in the Pacific Northwest yet the images and memory of what happened centered around assertive black bloc protest tactics deployed by a largely white core of activists whose message and goals were painted by media coverage as disorganized and incoherent This insightful history takes readers beyond the Battle in Seattle and offers a wider view of the organizing campaigns that marked the last half of the twentieth century Narrating the rise of multiracial coalition building in the Pacific Northwest from the 1970s to the 1990s Diana K Johnson shows how activists from Seattle s Black Indigenous Chicano and Asian American communities traversed racial regional and national boundaries to counter racism economic inequality and perceptions of invisibility In a city where more than eighty five percent of the residents were white they linked far flung and historically segregated neighborhoods while also crafting urban rural multiregional and transnational links to other populations of color

The activists at the center of this book challenged economic and racial inequality the globalization of capitalism and the white dominance of Seattle itself long before the WTO protest

Identity and Social Change Joseph E. Davis, 2011-12-31 Identity and Social Change examines the thorny problem of modern identity Trenchant critiques have come from identity politics focusing on the construction of difference and the solidarity of minorities and from academic deconstructions of modern subjectivity This volume places identity in a broader sociological context of destabilizing and reintegrating forces The contributors first explore identity in light of economic changes consumerism and globalization then focus on the question of identity dissolution Zygmunt Bauman examines the effects of consumerism and considers the constraints these place on the disadvantaged Drawing together discourses of the body and globalization David Harvey considers the growth of the wage labor system worldwide and its consequences for worker consciousness Mike Featherstone outlines a rethinking of citizenship and identity formation in light of the realities of globalization and new information technologies Part two opens with Robert Dunn's examination of cultural commodification and the attenuation of social relations He argues that the media and marketplace are part of a general destabilization of identity formation Kenneth Gergen maintains that proliferating communications technologies undermine the traditional conceptions of self and community and suggest the need for a new base for building the moral society In the final chapter

Harvie Ferguson argues that despite the contemporary infatuation with irony the decline of the notion of the self as an inner depth effectively severs the long connection between irony and identity
