

HOW RED WINE IS MADE

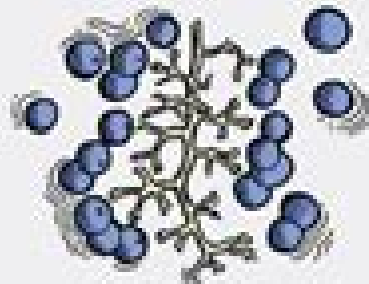

The only range of wine-making equipment in the world that's designed for the home

Harvest grapes

The vintage (harvest) starts in late August and it's done by hand in the vineyard. Grapes are picked and then grapes are taken to the cellar for processing.

Prepare grapes

Grapes are washed and then de-stemmed. Some wineries ferment whole clusters to add flavour. The result is a mixture of whole grapes and juice. Most wineries use a crusher to break the grapes into juice and skins.

Clarification

Clarification or 'fining' is the process of removing any remaining solids from the wine. This is done by adding a fining agent to the wine and then filtering it. Some wineries use a centrifuge to clarify the wine.

Press

After the fermentation process, the wine is pressed. The juice is then separated from the skins and seeds. The juice is then bottled or used for other purposes.

Fermentation

Grapes are added to the barrel and then the wine is fermented. The wine is then bottled or used for other purposes.

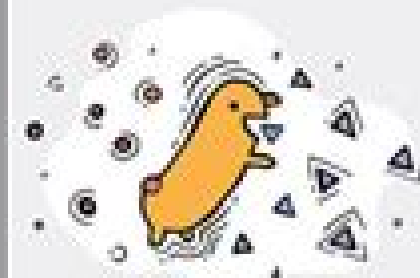

Add yeast

Yeast is added to the wine to start the fermentation process. The wine is then bottled or used for other purposes.

Bottling

Bottling is the final step in the wine-making process. The wine is then bottled or used for other purposes.

Malolactic

Malolactic fermentation is a process where the wine is fermented. The wine is then bottled or used for other purposes.

Aging

The wine is then aged in the barrels. The wine is then bottled or used for other purposes.

Blending

The wine is then blended with other wines. The wine is then bottled or used for other purposes.

Bottle aging

The wine is then aged in the bottles. The wine is then bottled or used for other purposes.
