A. A. Milne

Red House:

The Red House Tony Abbott, 2009-06 Derek didn't ask for this. It's bad enough that his brother's body is hosting a dead soul. Then there's that whole business of the evil dead waging war. And don't even get him started on all the weird voices rattling around inside his head. But like Red House Sarah Messer, 2005-06-28 In her critically acclaimed ingenious memoir Sarah Messer explores America's fascination with history, family, and Great Houses. Her Massachusetts childhood home had sheltered the Hatch family for 325 years when her parents bought it in 1965. The will of the house's original owner, Walter Hatch, which stipulated Red House was to be passed down never to be sold or mortgaged from my children and grandchildren forever, still hung in the living room. In Red House, Messer explores the strange and enriching consequences of growing up with another family's birthright. Answering the riddle of when shelter becomes first a home and then an identity, Messer has created a classic exploration of heritage, community, and the role architecture plays in our national identity.

anthropological kinship structures In this approach the anchor point is the house understood as a conceptual resource that is a consequence of a strategy of constructing and legitimizing identities under ever shifting social conditions Drawing on the results of an extensive program of fieldwork in the Bay of Firth Mainland Orkney the text explores the idea that the physical appearance of the house is a potent resource for materializing the dichotomous alliance and descent principles apparent in the archaeological evidence for the early and later Neolithic of Orkney It argues that some of the insights made by L vi Strauss in his basic formulation of soci t s maisons are extremely relevant to interpreting the archaeological evidence and providing the parameters for a social narrative of the material changes occurring in Orkney between the 4th and 2nd millennia cal BC The major excavations undertaken during the Cuween Wideford Landscape Project provided an unprecedented depth and variety of evidence for Neolithic occupation bridging the gap between domestic and ceremonial architecture and form exploring the transition from wood to stone and relationships between the living and the dead and the role of material culture The results are described and discussed in detail here enabling tracing of the development and fragmentation of soci t s maisons over a 1500 year period of Northern Isles prehistory Teaching Mathematics to Deaf Children Terezinha Nunes,2004-09-24 From an early age deaf children excel in thinking about and remembering what they learn through visual spatial instruction This strength in information processing can be used in the mathematics classroom to achieve better learning outcomes This book discusses ways to teach deaf children about the four arithmetic operations through spatial representation in problem solving Examples for the teaching of fractions and graphs are also included These visual representations are useful to support the children s understanding of mathematical concepts and to promote peer collaboration The teaching programme was tested with deaf children in six schools with excellent results the children in the project made significantly more progress in one school year than expected for either deaf and hearing children over the same time This work was made possible through the generous support of The Nuffield Foundation SR-312 Extension, SR-207 to US-1 North (SR-5), St. Johns County ,1996 Library of Congress Subject Headings Library of Congress,2004
