Meacham, Fred Stewart, J. Greg Jones, 1997      Responses of Forest Ecosystems to Environmental Changes A. Teller, P. Mathy, J.N.R. Jeffers, 2012-12-06 This book arises out of a symposium on forest and woodland terrestrial ecosystems which was held in Florence on 20-24th May 1991. It was organised jointly by the Commission of the European Communities CEC and the European Science Foundation ESF in association with the Italian Research Council CNR. The symposium brought together most of the internationally recognized groups working on forest ecosystems including biologists, botanists, ecologists, soil scientists, modellers, foresters and policy makers. All the CEC countries were represented. In addition, there was a broad audience from Eastern and Central Europe and from EFTA countries. Outstanding experts from outside Europe, US, Australia, Canada, Japan, China etc. were also present. In total, the symposium was attended by more than 500 participants. The structure of this book reflects the main elements of the meeting. As such, it includes three main sections. The first consists of six major state-of-the-art reviews corresponding to the six plenary sessions, each followed by a discussion which has been summarized by rapporteurs. The reviews were prepared to assess critically the state of current knowledge in ecosystem research and to provide a scientific basis both for policy decisions and for further research.

Recent Reports, 1985 Ecosystem Function in Heterogeneous Landscapes Gary M. Lovett, Clive G. Jones, Monica G. Turner, Kathleen C. Weathers, 2007-12-21. Among the most difficult problems in the life sciences is the challenge to understand the details of how ecosystems, watersheds, landscapes function. Yet the welfare of all life, not just the human species, depends upon the successful functioning of diverse and complicated ecosystems, each with various dimensions and compositions. Central to this working is the dominance and to a major extent, control of ecosystems by organisms, which means that these systems are constantly changing as the component organisms change and evolve. Such changes increase the challenge to understand the functioning of ecosystems and landscapes. Moreover, understanding the interactions among the myriad components of these systems is mind-boggling, as there are scores of biotic, probably many thousands of species, when the microbial components are fully enumerated through genomics, and countless abiotic ions, molecules, and compounds, entities all simultaneously interacting and responding to diverse external factors to produce functional or dysfunctional environments for life. This book focuses on the problems of connectedness and ecosystem functioning. It is difficult enough to understand how an ecosystem functions when it is considered in isolation, but all ecosystems are open and connected to everything else. Clearly, the inputs to any ecosystem are the outputs from others, and vice versa, and as such, the fluxes represent major, if not critical, points for managing or changing the overall functioning of an ecosystem or landscape. A major challenge is to find appropriate conceptual frameworks to address these complicated problems.

Big Sagebrush Bruce Leigh Welch, 2005. Pioneers traveling along the Oregon Trail from western Nebraska through Wyoming and southern Idaho and into eastern Oregon referred to their travel as an 800-mile journey through a sea of sagebrush, mainly big sagebrush, Artemisia tridentata. Today, approximately 50 percent of the sagebrush sea has given way to agriculture, cities, and towns, and other human developments. What remains is further fragmented by range management practices creeping expansion of woodlands alien weed species and the historic view that big sagebrush is a worthless plant Two ideas are promoted in this report 1 big sagebrush is a nursing mother to a host of organisms that range from microscopic fungi to large mammals and 2 many range management practices applied to big sagebrush ecosystems are not science based
