How Britain Shaped the Manufacturing World, 1851-1951 Philip Hamlyn Williams, 2022-07-28 The peoples of the British Isles gave to the world the foundations on which modern manufacturing economies are built This is quite an assertion but history shows that in the late eighteenth century a remarkable combination of factors and circumstances combined to give birth to Britain as the first manufacturing nation Further factors allowed it to remain top manufacturing dog well into the twentieth century while other countries were busy playing catch up Through two world wars and the surrounding years British manufacturing remained strong albeit while ceding the lead to the United States This book seeks to tell the remarkable story of British manufacturing using the Great Exhibition of 1851 as a prism Prince Albert and Sir Henry Cole had conceived an idea of bringing together exhibits from manufacturers across the world to show to its many millions of visitors the pre eminence of the British 1851 was not the start but rather a pause for a bask in glory This book traces back from the exhibits in Hyde Park s Crystal Palace to identify the factors that gave rise to this pre eminence then follows developments up until the Festival of Britain exactly one century later Steam power and communication by electric telegraph both British inventions predated the Exhibition After it came the sewing machine and bicycle motor car and aeroplane but also electrical power radio and the chemical and pharmaceutical industries where Britain played a leading part The British Economy 1870-1939 Derek H. The Struggle for Control of Global Communication Jill Hills, 2010-10-01 Tracing the development of communication markets and the regulation of international communications from the 1840s through World War I Jill Hills examines the political technological and economic forces at work during the formative century of global communication Hills analyzes power relations within the arena of global communications from the inception of the telegraph through the successive technologies of submarine telegraph cables ship to shore wireless broadcast radio shortwave wireless the telephone and movies with sound As she shows global communication began to overtake transportation as an economic political and social force after the inception of the telegraph which shifted communications from national to international From that point on information was a commodity and ownership of the communications infrastructure became valuable as the means of distributing information The struggle for control of that infrastructure occurred in part because British control of communications hindered the growing economic power of the United States Hills outlines the technological advancements and regulations that allowed the United States to challenge British hegemony and enter the global communications market She demonstrates that control of global communication was part of a complex web of relations between and within the government and corporations of Britain and the United States Detailing the interplay between American federal regulation and economic power Hills shows how these forces shaped communications technologies and illuminates the contemporary systems of power in global communications
