David Turnock,2016-12-05 Although a great deal has been published on the economic social and engineering history of nineteenth century railways the work of historical geographers has been much less conspicuous This overview by David Turnock goes a long way towards restoring the balance It details every important aspect of the railway s influence on spatial distribution of economic and social change providing a full account of the nineteenth century geography of the British Isles seen in the context of the railway The book reviews and explains the shape of the developing railway network beginning with the pre steam railways and connections between existing road and water communications and the new rail lines The author also discusses the impact of the railways on the patterns of industrial urban and rural change throughout the century Throughout the historical geography of Ireland is treated in equal detail to that of Great Britain LMR Nigel

Welbourn,1994-01-01 England's Lost Transport Heritage from the Air Allan Brodie,2025-03-21 Britain was the first country in the world to industrialise and alongside new means of production came novel forms of transport including steam trains and steamships in the 19th century and jet aircraft and hovercrafts in the middle of the 20th century Aerofilms flying across the country from 1919 onwards recorded the country s complex infrastructure of road rail and maritime transport that was in place between the wars and the company was evolving alongside and was part of the new aviation industry that was being created While flying across the country Aerofilms remarkable photographers also recorded how Britain communicated with its imperial territories The collection includes images of the country s vast merchant fleet of liners and cargo vessels as well as the flying boats that formed an international network before jets came to dominate the sky Aerofilms were there to record the first flight of the ill fated airship R101 Much of this interesting transport history that the company s photographers witnessed has now disappeared or has been relegated to being museum exhibits This book uses Aerofilms photographs to tell the story of England s lost transport heritage from Roman roads to supersonic Concorde Shed Side in South Lancashire and Cheshire Kenn Pearce,2012-07-01 In the 1950s and 1960s south Lancashire and Cheshire was criss crossed by a web of railway lines servicing the various needs of local industries The region was a haven for railway enthusiasts who pursued the hundreds of steam workhorses based at British Railways depots in chemical towns such as Warrington Widnes Wigan and Sutton Oak besides Southport and Northwich While these facilities appeared less glamorous than larger counterparts in Liverpool or Manchester the stories of the engines trains and the men who were based at the depots in these towns was no less fascinating Shed Side in South Lancashire and Cheshire provides a fascinating portrait of the daily operations of the freight and passenger trains of the region during the final decade of Britain's steam era It evokes a period of grimy metal clattering smoke filled industry and of an era forever etched in our industrial heritage Our Railroads To-Morrow Edward Hungerford, 2022-07-20 For nearly a hundred years now we have been upbuilding the railroad structure of the world America pioneered in its creation Our fathers and our fathers fathers cannot now remember the day when the call of the iron horse was not heard across the land The railroad train has become part and parcel of our lives And even though in these days with our motor cars at the curb we may have come to scorn the railroad train for our own short travels we know full well that it brings the milk to our doorstep the coal to our bins the provender to our larders It helps weave the fabric upon our backs build the shoes upon our feet form the hats upon our heads At every corner every turn we are dependent upon the railroad Therefore there is not a man or a woman in the entire United States to whom its present plight should not be of the keenest interest and importance The Economist, 1846 Cases Argued and Determined in the Court of Common Pleas and in the Exchequer Chamber John Scott, Great Britain. Times, 1843 An Almanack for the Year of Our Lord ... Joseph Whitaker, 1929 The Race to the North David Wragg, 2013-01-21 In the late nineteenth century some of Britain's leading main line railway companies threw caution to the winds in an attempt to provide the fastest passenger express services between London and Scotland These became known as the races to the north There were two phases in 1888 and 1895 and they spurred the building of new bridges across the Firth of Forth and Firth of Tay David Wraggs gripping detailed narrative tells the story of this epic engineering and commercial competition He concentrates on the determination of the railway companies to see who could provide the fastest schedule between London and the main Scottish cities of Edinburgh Glasgow Perth Dundee and Aberdeen Casting aside their early policy of co existence on these prestigious and lucrative routes the West Coast and East Coast companies were drawn into a period of intense highly publicized rivalry as they sought to dominate the market David Wragg gives an insight into the conduct of the well publicized highs and tragic lows of this dramatic story the extension of the lines to the far north the building of the Tay and Forth bridges including the collapse of the first Tay bridge with 72 fatalities and the repeated bids by the companies to cut the journey times While he describes the public side of this fascinating story David Wragg fills in the background which is no less interesting the pioneering engineering of the steam age the massive construction projects the cut throat battle for passengers and freight and the deep inter company rivalries that drove the rapid development of the railways during the Victorian period Railway News, Finance and Joint-stock Companies' Journal ,1918 English
