Marine Protected Areas Principles And Techniques For Management:

Marine Protected Areas S. Gubbay, 2012-12-06 Marine protected areas MPAs have an important role in marine conservation programmes around the world. Although most have been established relatively recently when compared with protected areas on land, there is considerable expertise on their identification, setting up and management. Some techniques have been adapted from those used on land. Others are novel and unique to marine conservation. The chapters in this book give an insight into this fast-developing field where experiment and innovation work alongside techniques which have been tried and tested. The guiding principles behind key stages in the setting up and management of MPAs are described and case studies illustrate how they have worked. While it is most encouraging to read about the successes, the case studies also point to difficulties which have been encountered. Not all of the examples are new or recent but together they illustrate what is happening in this field.

Governing Marine Protected Areas Peter Jones, 2014-02-24 In this innovative volume the author addresses some important challenges related to the effective and equitable governance of marine protected areas MPAs. These challenges are explored through a study of 20 MPA case studies from around the world. A novel governance analysis framework is employed to address some key questions: How can top-down and bottom-up approaches to MPA governance be combined? What does this mean in reality in different contexts? How can we develop and implement governance approaches that are both effective in achieving conservation objectives and equitable in fairly sharing associated costs and benefits? The author explores the many issues that these questions raise as well as exploring options for addressing them. A key theme is that MPA governance needs to combine people, state and market approaches rather than being based on one approach and its related ideals. Building on a critique of the governance analysis framework developed for common pool resources, the author puts forward a more holistic and less prescriptive framework for deconstructing and analyzing the governance of MPAs. This interdisciplinary analysis is aimed at supporting the development of MPA governance approaches that build social-ecological resilience through both institutional and biological diversity. It will also make a significant contribution to wider debates on natural resource governance as it poses some critical questions for contemporary approaches to related research and offers an alternative theoretical and empirical approach.

Routledge Handbook of Ocean Resources and Management Hance D. Smith, Juan Luis Suárez de Vivero, Tundi S. Agardy, 2015-10-16 This comprehensive handbook provides a global overview of ocean resources and management by focusing on critical issues relating to human development and the marine environment, their interrelationships as expressed through the uses of the sea as a resource and the regional expression of these themes. The underlying approach is geographical, with prominence given to the biosphere, political arrangements and regional patterns, all considered to be especially crucial to the human understanding required for the use and management of the world's oceans. Part one addresses key themes in our knowledge of relationships between people and the sea on a global scale, including economic and political issues and understanding and managing marine environments. Part two provides a systematic review of the uses of the sea grouped into food ocean space materials and energy and the sea as an environmental resource Part three on the geography of the sea considers management strategies especially related to the state system and regional management developments in both core economic regions and the developing periphery Chapter 23 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF under a Creative Commons Attribution Non

Global Change and Protected Areas Guido Visconti, Martin Beniston, Emilio D. Iannorelli, Diego Barba, 2006-04-11 High mountains can be considered as particularly appropriate environments to detect effects of climate change on natural biocoenoses in a global scale for the following reasons Firstly ecosystems at the temperature limits of plant life are generally thought to be especially sensitive to climate change 1 2 3 An already ongoing upward shift of vascular plants at high summits in the Alps determined by the Austrian IGBP research 4 5 6 7 8 is most likely a response to the atmospheric warming since the 19th century Secondly high mountains still comprise the most natural ecosystems in many countries being largely untouched by human settlements and agricultural influences Therefore climatic effects on ecosystems can be studied without masking effects from human land use Thirdly high mountain ranges are present in virtually every major zoniobiome of the earth The research initiative GLORIA aims to establish an urgently needed global monitoring network by using high mountain ecosystems as sensitive indicators as required in the IGBP Mountain Workplan 9 Moreover a deeper understanding of assemblage mechanisms and assemblage processes in vegetation patterns as a contribution to ecological theory can be expected This paper gives a short general overview about GLORIA and a first outline about the concept method and some few results of the Multi Summit Approach one of the basic intentions within the proposed network It aims to encourage the involvement of high mountain researchers and research coordinators in a detailed discussion of the proposed research activities and in a co operation within the planned global monitoring network

Conservation of Marine Resources and Sustainable Coastal Community

Development in Malaysia Muhammad Mehedi Masud, 2019-07-26 This book addresses a timely and compelling emerging issue related to the conservation and sustainable use of marine resources and the sustainable development of the coastal community. Marine protected areas (MPAs) make a remarkable contribution to the protection of marine communities by providing sustainable livelihoods, deriving financial benefits from the development of fisheries and tourism, as well as by restoring ocean productivity and preventing further environmental degradation. These areas have been considered the cornerstone of a blue economy due to their substantial economic, social, and environmental contributions. However, MPAs around the world are severely hampered by a multitude of issues and challenges, such as inefficient management, poor socioeconomic conditions, and environmental degradation due to human activities, overexploitation of marine resources, degradation of water quality, massive waste production, and climate change. These are the main obstacles to economic, social, and environmental sustainability. Hence, a collaborative management approach and an integrated management policy framework is urgently needed for the economic, social, political, cultural, technological, and ecological development of coastal communities.
