taken to increase political participation in urban America Berry Portney and Thomson show that citizens in participatory programs are able to get their issues on the public agenda and develop a stronger sense of community greater trust in government officials and more confidence in the political system From a rigorous evaluation of surveys and interviews with thousands of citizens and policymakers the authors also find that central governments in these cities are highly responsive to their neighborhoods and that less conflict exists among citizens and policymakers The authors assert that these programs can provide a blueprint for major reform in cities across the country They outline the components for successful participation programs and offer recommendations for those who want to get involved They demonstrate that participatio
