Liquidity and Crises Franklin Allen, 2011-02-03 One important cause of the 2007-2009 crisis was illiquidity combined with exposure of many financial institutions to liquidity needs. Challenging Global Finance Elizabeth Friesen, 2012-01-25 Friesen demonstrates how transnational CSOs and NGOs can influence the context in which international political decisions are made. She shows how by reframing the issues the transnational campaign for the cancellation of third world debt altered the dominant discourse, shifted the agenda and thereby shaped political outcomes.

The Economics of the Middle East and North Africa (MENA) Joseph Pelzman, 2012-06-26 The Middle East and North Africa (MENA) is a large, complex and diverse region which faces a wide range of economic issues. The MENA group includes Algeria, Bahrain, Cyprus, Djibouti, Egypt, Iran, Iraq, Israel, Jordan, Kuwait, Lebanon, Libya, Morocco, Oman, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Tunisia, Turkey, United Arab Emirates and Yemen. This book uses analytical tools drawn from the trade, labor, finance and development literature to critically analyze and compare these countries' economic policies. The approach taken in this book is to focus on the economic policies and institutional arrangements which have evolved in MENA and which may serve to explain the differences in each country's economic performance. The key objective of the book is to unravel the context-specific variety of growth-promoting policies within MENA rather than focus on specific countries. This book stresses that the poor performance of Arab MENA can be chiefly explained by their aversion to a Western paradigm of market economics. In the advanced industrial countries and in Israel, globalization is largely viewed in economic terms: the free movement of goods, services, labor and capital across borders. In the Arab MENA, however, globalization is viewed in largely ideological terms and has been regarded as a new version of imperialism. Consequently, the Arab MENA region remains one of the most unglobalized regions in the world. The book serves as both a textbook and a summary of the very large literature on MENA. It examines the following economic realities of the region and compares them across the MENA economies: Technology gap and comparative development; The value of education and human capital development; Water and food security; The economics and politics of oil; Population growth; role of gender and labor mobility; The role of the state as economic actor; The economic value of democracy; The prospects for regional integration.

Current Account Deficits, External Liabilities and Economic Policy Mr. J. D. Pitchford, 1992-07-01 This paper assesses the policy significance of foreign liabilities and the current account deficits that give rise to them. Current account imbalances are shown to have some capacity to indicate difficulties elsewhere in the economy but are imperfect indicators and subject to potential misinterpretation. The paper concludes that successful pursuit of internal balance could be an important factor in stabilizing current account balances but beyond that there seems no good reason for using macroeconomic policy to target the current account as such. However, there may be grounds for microeconomic action to remedy specifically identified problems Journal of Economic Literature ,2006-06 The Politics of Bad Options

Stefanie Walter,Ari Ray,Nils Redeker,2020-11-12 This is an open access title available under the terms of a CC BY NC ND 4.0 International licence It is free to read at Oxford Academic and offered as a free PDF download from OUP and selected open access locations Why was the Eurozone crisis so difficult to resolve Why was it resolved in a manner in which some countries bore a much larger share of the pain than other countries Why did no country leave the Eurozone rather than implement unprecedented austerity Who supported and opposed the different policy options in the crisis domestically and how did the distributive struggles among these groups shape crisis politics Building on macro level statistical data original survey data from interest groups and qualitative comparative case studies this book argues and shows that the answers to these questions revolve around distributive struggles about how the costs of the Eurozone crisis should be divided among countries and within countries among different socioeconomic groups Together with divergent but strongly held ideas about the right way to conduct economic policy and asymmetries in the distribution of power among actors severe distributive concerns of important actors lie at the root of the difficulties of resolving the Eurozone crisis as well as the difficulties to substantially reform EMU The book provides new insights into the politics of the Eurozone crisis by emphasizing three perspectives that have received scant attention in existing research a comparative perspective on the Eurozone crisis by systematically comparing it to previous financial crises an analysis of the whole range of policy options including the ones not chosen and a unified framework that examines crisis politics not just in deficit debtor but also in surplus creditor countries
