

Reclaiming Mission: Reflections on Mission as Global Interconnectedness and Spirit-Empowered Evangelism

ANICKA FAST¹

I enjoyed participating in the panel “Perspectives from emerging leaders” at the Council of International Anabaptist Ministries 2018 plenary meeting. Here, I offer a selection from some of my actual responses to the questions asked by moderator Jamie Pitts, as well as some additional responses I had prepared but did not share at the time.

Share a significant experience that has given you perspective about global mission partnerships.

As the daughter of parents who worked as missionary Bible translators in Papua New Guinea, I spent part of my childhood living on a large, fenced compound where several hundred expatriate missionaries lived alongside a few hundred more Papua New Guinean employees. I relatively often heard expatriate missionaries justify the task of Bible translation through appeal to an eschatological vision of many peoples, tribes, nations, and languages praising God together. They argued that making the Bible available to new people groups had value because it helped to bring this vision to fruition—essentially saying that Bible translation contributed to the fullness of the global church. However, this discourse about a global and multicultural church contrasted with the almost completely segregated worship that took place on Sunday mornings, where missionaries and Papua New Guineans worshipped separately for the most part. The incongruity I felt then has stuck with me ever since and has played a big part in leading me to theological studies that focus on ecclesiology.

¹ Anicka Fast is a doctoral student at Boston University School of Theology, studying world Christianity and mission history. Her research interests include the missionary encounter in DR Congo, political theology in an African context, and Anabaptist/Mennonite missiology and ecclesiology. Anicka has previously served with Mennonite Central Committee in DR Congo. She lives in Montréal with her husband and two daughters, and attends Hochma, a French-speaking congregation of Mennonite Church Eastern Canada.

Reclaiming Love Brynn Paulin, 2022-07-30 Mission Destroy the man I love Savannah It s for his own good I love Jordan more than life itself A cliché but true For as long as I can remember I ve wanted nothing more than a life with him Marriage family happily ever after We both want that When I learned it s not to be I did the only thing possible I cut him loose to make way for his future Without me Jordan I had three months left on my mission in Afghanistan Then I d come home and marry my woman I never expected a Dear John letter from my fiancé Never in a million years But with an apology and no explanation for ripping out my heart she said goodbye No No way Goodbye is the last thing I ll accept As soon as I get back to the States I ll prove we re meant for forever But when I make it home my girl is nowhere to be found New mission Find Savannah Reclaim her love Never let her go

Cultivating an Evangelistic Character Christopher James Schoon, 2018-04-24 This project explores the relationship between worship discipleship and evangelism within the missional church movement Engaging contributions from liturgical theology Christian ethics and post Christendom evangelism the book proposes a missional approach to worship that when integrated with a praxis oriented discipleship cultivates Jesus character among God s people Along the way the project attends to the Holy Spirit s transformative presence the liturgical rhythms of remembering and anticipating and the practices of hospitality and compassion In the end Cultivating an Evangelistic Character contends that the Spirit works through the integration of worship and discipleship to form God s people In other words God s people become evangelistic or as Newbigin said the hermeneutic of the gospel

Eastman,Carolyn E. Goddard,1976 Office of Surface Mining Annual Report United States. Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement,2002 Karl Barth and the Future of Evangelical Theology Christian T Collins Winn,John L Drury,2017-09-28 The theology of Karl Barth has often been a productive dialogue partner for evangelical theology but for too long the dialogue has been dominated by questions of orthodoxy Karl Barth and the Future of Evangelical Theology contributes to the conversation through a creative reconfiguration of both partners in the conversation neither of whom can be rightly understood as preservers of Protestant orthodoxy Rather American evangelicalism is identified with the revivalist forms of Protestantism that arose in the post Reformation era while Barth is revisited as a theologian attuned both to divine and human agency In the ensuing conversation questions of orthodoxy are not eliminated but subordinated to a concern for the life of God and God s people By offering an alternative to the dominant constraints this book opens up new avenues for fruitful conversation on Barth and the future of evangelical theology Women and Missions: Past and Present Shirley Ardener,Fiona Bowie,Deborah Kirkwood,2021-02-25 This collection of essays by eminent anthropologists missiologists and historians explores the hitherto neglected topic of women missionaries and the effect of Christian missionary activity upon women The book consists of two parts The first part looks at 19th century women missionaries as presented in literature at the backgrounds and experience of women in the mission field and at the attitudes of missionary societies towards their female workers Although they are traditionally presented as wives and support workers it becomes apparent that on the contrary women missionaries often played a culturally important role The second and longest section asks whether women missionaries are indeed a special case and provides some fascinating studies of the impact of Christian missions on women in both historical material and a wealth of contemporary material Of particular value is the perspective of those who were themselves objects of missionary activity and who reflected upon this experience Women actively absorbed and adapted the teachings of the Christian missionaries and Western models are seen to be utilized and developed in sometimes unexpected ways

Language, Politics and Identity in Taiwan Hui-Ching Chang, Richard Holt, 2014-11-20 Following the move by Chiang Kai shek and the Chinese Nationalist Party Kuomintang KMT to Taiwan after losing the Chinese civil war to the Chinese Communist Party CCP in the late 1940s and Chiang s subsequent lifelong vow to reclaim the mainland China has occupied if not monopolized the gaze of Taiwan where its projected images are reflected Whether mirror image shadow or ideal contrast China has been and will continue to be a key reference point in Taiwan s convoluted effort to find its identity Language Politics and Identity in Taiwan traces the intertwined paths of five sets of names Taiwan has used to name China since the KMT came to Taiwan in 1949 the derogatory Communist bandits the ideologically focused Chinese Communists the seemingly neutral geographical designators mainland and opposite shore both shores and the ethnic and national label China with the official designation People s Republic of China In doing so it explores how Taiwanese identities are constituted and reconstituted in the shifting and switching of names for China in the application of these names to alternative domains of Taiwanese life in the waning or waxing of names following tides of history and polity and in the increasingly contested meaning of names Through textual analyses of historical archives and other mediated texts and artifacts the chapters chart Taiwan s identity negotiation over the past half century and critically evaluate key interconnections between language and politics This unique book will be of great interest to students and scholars of Taiwan studies Chinese politics communication studies and linguistics

Beyond Missio Dei Sarosh Koshy, 2021-11-24 In this book Sarosh Koshy strives to go beyond the mission model of Christianity that emerged alongside and within the colonial enterprise and ethos since the sixteenth century

Rather than denounce the inheritance of the mission movement that transformed both the church and world in innumerable ways it is a simultaneous expression of appreciation for this precious heritage and an attempt to do justice by it through a yearning quest for relevant paradigms of Christian engagement. Indeed there is an intense tension within this book and in fact a twin tension at that. The tension is between those seeking to keep the current mission paradigm alive out of habit or as a self-serving device thus corrupting and withering away a bequeathed that essentially set free the voluntary independent spirit of Christian individuals and their intentional collectives from both the ecclesiastical and political authorities. On the other side are those who enlist mission both as a subsequent activity and as a basis to pursue innocuous and at times apparently heroic options that would seemingly satisfy a supposed missional mandate. This work enlists postcolonial and poststructuralist resources pedagogically to teach of mission missiology. World Christianity and intercultural theology

Recovering Jewishness Frederick S. Roden, 2016-02-22. Judaism and Jewish life reflect a diversity of identity after the past two centuries of modernization. This work examines how the early reformers of the 19th century and their legacy into the 20th century created a livable liberal Jewish identity that allowed a reinvention of what it meant to be Jewish, a process that continues today. Many scholars of the modern Jewish identity focus on the ways in which the past two centuries have resulted in the loss of Jewishness through assimilation, intermarriage, conversion to other faiths, genocide in the Holocaust, and decline in religious observance. In this work, author Frederick S. Roden presents a decidedly different perspective that the changes in Judaism throughout the 19th and 20th centuries resulted in a malleable, welcoming, and expanded Jewish identity, one that has benefited from intermarriage and converts to Judaism. The book examines key issues in the modern definition of Jewish identity: who is and is not considered a Jew, and why; issues of Jewish authenticity and the recent history of the debate. Attention is paid to the experiences of individuals who came to Judaism from outside the tradition through marrying into Jewish families and/or choosing Judaism as a religion. In his consideration of the tragedy of the Holocaust, the author examines how a totalitarian regime's racial policing of Jewish identity served to awaken a connection with and reconfiguration of what that Jewish identity meant for those who retrospectively realized their Jewishness in the postwar era.

Hope and Community Veli-Matti Kärkkäinen, 2017. The culmination of Kärkkäinen's multivolume magnum opus. This fifth and final volume of Veli-Matti Kärkkäinen's ambitious five-volume systematic theology develops a constructive Christian eschatology and ecclesiology in dialogue with the Christian tradition with contemporary theology in all its global and contextual diversity and with other major living faiths: Judaism, Islam, Buddhism, and Hinduism. In Part One of the book, Kärkkäinen discusses eschatology in the contexts of world faiths and natural sciences, including physical, cosmological, and neuroscientific theories. In Part Two on ecclesiology, he adopts a deeply ecumenical approach. His proposal for greater Christian unity includes the various dimensions of the church's missional existence and a robust dialogical witness to other faith communities.
