Advanced Science and Technology for Biological Decontamination of Sites Affected by Chemical and Radiological Nuclear Agents Nelson Marmioli, Borys Samotokin, Marta Marmioli, 2007-05-03 Pollution of soils and waters by human activities is an important and widespread problem This pollution by organic and inorganic substances can affect individual organisms human populations and ecosystems each in its own unique way In particular former military installations often used for weapons production and nuclear power plants represent a ongoing and substantial threat to environment and human health because of the specific pollutants that can be released Solvents explosives fuels radionuclides heavy metals and metalloids all have been identified in the environment around these installations Remediation technologies for these contaminated sites have been developed based on conventional systems utilising physical and chemical treatments such as excavation and incineration pump and treat methods ultraviolet oxidation soil washing etc These approaches are usually very expensive and can involve the removal of large amounts of soil or water which often leads to resources depletion and limitation in the future utilisation of the site Recently new decontamination approaches based on living organisms in particular micro organisms and plants have been researched and developed as a more sustainable alternative because they have lower costs reduced environmental impacts and increased public acceptance Development of biological decontamination techniques has been carried out in several laboratories and research institutions worldwide and practical applications on contaminated sites have been recorded in several countries In the USA and Canada several commercial companies have been utilizing these approaches for years alongside conventional techniques with great success a good examples can be found is in the U S Decontamination and Decommissioning of Nuclear Facilities Marilyn M. Osterhout, 2012-12-06 This vOlume contains the invited and contributed papers pre sented at the American Nuclear Society ANS meeting on Decontamina tion and Decommissioning D D of Nuclear Facilities held Septem ber 16 20 1979 in Sun Valley Idaho This was the first U S meeting of the ANS which addressed both of these important and related subjects The meeting was attended by more than 400 engineers scientists laymen and representatives of federal state and local governments including participants from eleven foreign countries The technical sessions included several sessions concentrating on ongoing D D programs in the U S and abroad In addition new ground was broken in such areas as decommissioning costs and cost recovery advanced programs on reactor coolant filtration and other areas of continuing and increasing importance to the nuclear industry and to consumers The dual sponsorship of the meeting The ANS Reactor Operations Division and the Eastern Idaho Section of the ANS helped spur a high quality program a pleasant location and a high degree of success in technical interchange between the attendees As guest speaker we were honored to have Mr Vince Boyer of Philadelphia Electric Company Mr Boyer is both a past chairman of the ANS Reactor Operations Division and a past president of the American Nuclear Society His views on the nuclear industry and of its current status were informative and interesting

Guidelines for Remediation Strategies to Reduce the Radiological Consequences of Environmental Contamination Sergey Fesenko,B. J. Howard,2012 This publication addresses the remediation of non urban terrestrial and freshwater ecosystems including agricultural forest and aquatic environments contaminated with radionuclides by radiation accidents radiological incidents and other past activities Associated social ethical and economic considerations are also presented The book describes modern decision aiding technologies and environmental decision support systems for remediation planning and optimization Several case studies demonstrating remediation success radiation and radiological accidents nuclear test sites etc are presented and evaluated The publication considers only remediation strategies and management options that are relevant for existing exposure situations Management options countermeasures for pre deposition and early phases after emergencies are the subject of other IAEA publications

Handbook of Radioactive Contamination and Decontamination Jan Severa,J. Bár,1991-12-04 The objective of this book is to present a comprehensive picture first of the fundamentals of general contamination of solid surfaces and water and in the second part to review the main practical procedures and means of applied decontamination used in the fields of activity The most emphasis on radioactive contamination deals with decontamination of the operational facilities in nuclear power plants Other special decontamination branches of current interest are also dealt with briefly The art of decontamination is being enriched by the progress achieved in relevant scientific disciplines and employs these relative advances The current volume discusses in detail the following trends in decontamination Firstly the development and use of new decontamination methods that are highly efficient non aggressive to decontaminated materials and economically feasible secondly the utilization of progressive elements of automation and robotics thirdly the development and use of such decontamination formulations that would minimize the volume of wastes and would produce wastes in a form in which they could be either easily further treated or safely disposed of without risk to human health or the environment finally the choice of suitable materials used both for the structural and the technological parts of nuclear installations with regard to their minimal contaminability and ease of decontamination

Nuclear Decommissioning Michele Laraia,2012-02-21 Once a nuclear installation has reached the end of its safe and economical operational lifetime the need for its decommissioning arises Different strategies can be employed for nuclear decommissioning based on the evaluation of particular hazards and their attendant risks as well as on the analysis of costs of clean up and waste management This allows for decommissioning either soon after permanent shutdown or perhaps a long time later the latter course allowing for radioactivity levels to drop in any activated or contaminated components It is crucial for clear processes and best practices to be applied in decommissioning such installations and sites particular where any significant health and environmental risks exist This book critically reviews the nuclear decommissioning processes and technologies applicable to nuclear power plants and other civilian nuclear facilities Part one focuses on the fundamental planning issues in starting a nuclear decommissioning process from principles and safety regulations to financing and project management Part two covers the execution phase of nuclear decommissioning projects detailing processes and technologies such as dismantling decontamination and radioactive waste management as well as environmental remediation site clearance and reuse Finally part three details international experience in the decommissioning of nuclear applications including the main nuclear reactor types and nuclear fuel cycle facilities as well as small nuclear facilities and legacy nuclear waste sites Critically reviews nuclear decommissioning processes and technologies applicable to nuclear power plants and other civilian nuclear facilities Discusses the fundamental planning issues in starting a nuclear decommissioning process Considers the execution phase of nuclear decommissioning projects including dismantling decontamination and radioactive waste management as well as environmental remediation site clearance and reuse
