Sajjad,2025-02-18 Lahore in Motion provides a portrait of the Pakistani metropolis by tracing the path of the city's first metro rail corridor. Construction for this major piece of public infrastructure began in 2015 and over subsequent years the nascent Orange Line rapidly reconfigured Lahore's urban landscape displacing residents and slicing through existing structures along its route all while offering Lahoris the promise of world class public transportation. The volume collects stories from a series of walks along the metro's 27 kilometre path bringing together a wide variety of authors including academics and activists architects and artists to reflect on the relationship between urban change and belonging in a historic city. Each chapter is organised around a particular station on the metro but the volume moves far beyond the neighbourhoods shadowed by the train's elevated track. Contributors navigate the friction generated by the Orange Line's construction and reflect on how this project of connection both responds to and produces fragmentation in the urban environment. The book brings together critical insights on the politics of infrastructure in South Asia and the desires and dispossessions fuelling projects of development in the Global South assessing how they unevenly inflect the intimate rhythms of everyday life in one of the world's most populous cities. Praise for Lahore in Motion This brilliant collection of essays written by a stellar bunch of academics and practitioners is a critical addition to the expanding knowledge frontier on infrastructure and cities in Pakistan.
