Many of these issues and methods are exemplified by the contributions to this volume. Data based studies included here deal with the acquisition of specific linguistic phenomena e.g. verb and noun morphology, lexicon, clause structures in a range of target languages e.g. English, French, German, Russian from a variety of settings involving different instructional approaches e.g. traditional foreign language classes, immersion classes, intensive ESL classes, content and language integrated language classes. Collectively the chapters in this book illustrate the productivity and diversity of current research on instructed second language acquisition. As such they serve as a valuable resource for researchers in SLA, psycholinguistics, linguistics and language education.

Methods in Cognitive Linguistics is an introduction to empirical methodology for language researchers. Intended as a handbook to exploring the empirical dimension of the theoretical questions raised by Cognitive Linguistics, the volume presents guidelines for employing methods from a variety of intersecting disciplines, laying out different ways of gathering empirical evidence. The book is divided into five sections. Methods and Motivations provides the reader with the preliminary background in scientific methodology and statistics. The sections on Corpus and Discourse Analysis and Sign Language and Gesture describe different ways of investigating usage data. Behavioral Research describes methods for exploring mental representation, simulation, semantics, child language development and the relationships between space and language and eye movements and cognition. Lastly Neural Approaches introduces the reader to ERP research and to the computational modeling of language.
